The Steamers marked R.M. proceed to BRINDISI, PLYMOUTH, and LONDON direct.
The Steamers marked * proceed to Aden only, and Passengers transhin to a Steamer for BRINDISI, PLYMOUTH, and LONDON.

In order to suit the convenience of travellers during the prevalence of the existing epidemic in Bombay, the P. & O. Company have arranged that Passengers arriving by the Mail trains in Bombay can proceed direct on board the outgoing Mail steamers on the morning of sailing, and breakfast and luncheon will be served at the usual hours. A steamer to convey Passengers will leave the Ballard Pier at 7-30 a.m.

Heavy baggage must be sent to the Ballard Pier (not Mazagon) before 8 a.m. on the day of sailing.

Before the departure of the Mail steamer, it is necessary for the Health Officer of the Port to hold a medical inspection of the Passengers and crew, and it is particularly requested that Passengers will muster at 1 p.m., for that purpose.

A Steam Tender leaves the Ballard Pier at noon on the day of sailing, to convey Passengers on board, and only hand packages will be received. The attention of Passengers is called to the importance of having their Baggage labelled with Port of Destination.

TO STRAITS, CHINA, AND JAPAN.

The Company's STEAMERS LEAVE BOMBAY FORTNIGHTLY, usually on WEDNESDAYS, taking Passengers for the STRAITS, CHINA, and JAPAN, and Return Tickets are issued on favourable terms.

A TERRIBLE COUGH,

"91, Commercial Road, Peckham, July 12.

"Dear Sir,—I am a poor hand at expressing my feelings, but I should like to thank you. Your lozenges have done wonders in relieving my terrible cough. Since I had the operation of 'Tracheotomy' (the same as the late Emperor of Germany, and unlike him, thank God, I am still alive) performed at St. Bartholomew's Hospital no one could possibly have had a more violent cough: it was so bad at times that it quite exhausted me. The mucous, which was very copious and hard, has been softened, and I have been able to get rid of it without difficulty.—I am, sir, yours truly, J. Hill."

I often suffer from Chronic Bronchitis, your Lozenge is the only remedy which gives me immediate ease. GOD SAVE THE QUEEN.

OPENING LOCKS WITHOUT A KEY.—Constable Mehta, yesterday, charged Mahomed Jamal, before Mr. Hamilton, Second Presidency Magistrate, at the Mazagon Police Court, with house-breaking and theft of a copper pot, valued at Rs. 5, the property of Baloo Sakaram, a carpenter, residing at Khetwady. On Friday, complainant locked his room and went out on business. Accused opened the lock by means of a duplicate key, and removed a pot, which he offered for sale to a Borah. The latter became suspicious and informed the police, and hence the charge. Accused being a notorious character, was sentenced to six months' rigorous imprisonment.

A DISHONEST SERVANT.—Before Mr. W. R. Hamilton, Second Presidency Magistrate, at the Mazagon Police Court, yesterday, Inspector Meyers charged Ismail Mahomed, lately in the employ of Sultanbai, residing at Nishanpada Road, with stealing brass and copper pots, valued at Rs. 125, belonging to his employer, Kastoorchand, a Marwari, was charged with dishonestly receiving stolen property. The complainant before leaving Bombay locked her rooms, and handed over the key to the accused, with instructions to give the same to her brother. The accused quietly opened the rooms as soon as the complainant left, and removed the vessels which he subsequently sold to the Marwari. The first accused was sentenced to six months' hard labour, but the second, who was defended by Mr. Kapadia, pleader, was discharged for want of evidence.

TOO MUCH TODDY.—An inquest was held at Parel Road, yesterday, by the coroner, touching the death of Gunnoo Jairam, a mill-labourer, aged 55 years, residing at 3rd Khetwady Lane. It appears that deceased and his two brothers came out to Parel on a trip on Sunday evening. They went to Chamarbaugh and indulged freely in toddy. They could not walk, and had to hire a rickla to return home; but the oscillation of the rickla was too much for the deceased, who became very sick, and by the time the party had reached the Gas-Works, he got out, and the brothers proceeded without him. He was not seen afterwards until 10 o'clock, on Monday morning, when his dead body was found floating in the hot-water tank of the Dinshaw Petit Mill. The jury returned a verdict that the deceased died by being drowned in a hot-water tank, but there was no evidence to show under what circumstances.

THEFT IN A HOSPITAL.—Yesterday, at the Mazagon Police Court, before Mr. W. R. Hamilton, Second Presidency Magistrate, Inspector Flanagan charged Pandoo Beheroo with having, on Sunday, stolen the collection box, containing Rs. 16-2-0, belonging to the J. J. Hospital. The accused was formerly a hamal employed at the hospital, but six months ago he was dismissed from the service. On Sunday night, about ten o'clock, one Raghoo Govind, a peon in the hospital, saw the poor-box attached to a pillar in the hospital. Next morning he noticed that the box was removed by force from off the pillar. The matter was reported to the police, and a sepoy doing duty at Kalbadevie Road arrested accused on suspicion on Monday morning at two o'clock. His person being searched, Rs. 11-2 were found upon him. The empty box was found by the police in the compound of the hospital. Accused pleaded guilty, and was sentenced to two months' rigorous imprisonment.

CHARGE OF CHEATING AGAINST A DOCTOR.

At the Esplanade Police Court, before the Chief Presidency Magistrate, yesterday, Dr. Edward Murphy was again charged, as the instance of the manager of the Army and Navy Co-operative Stores Society, with cheating in respect of a bicycle. The facts of the case have already been reported. Mr. Noble, of Messrs. Bland and Noble, solicitors, appeared for the prosecution, while Mr. M. M. Murzban, barrister-at-law, appeared for the defence.

The magistrate said he had received a letter from Mr. Gren, who had stood security for the accused, stating that, in the event of the proceedings extending to more than that afternoon, he was not willing to remain surety any longer.

Mr Murzban said that there was present in court one Mr. Kennedy ready to take Mr. Green's place; and he handed to the magistrate a paper which, he said, was the accused's statement. The admission of it, Mr. Murzban said, would probably shorten matters.

The magistrate said he would take up the statement at the proper time, and according to the practice of the court, which was after the evidence for the prosecution had finished.

Mr. Murzban again pressed the matter, and the magistrate took up the paper and read it. It was subsequently handed over to the prosecutor and his solicitor. Mr. Noble remarked that the matters mentioned in the paper were not correct.

Major Hildebrand, general manager in Bombay of the Co-operative Stores, examined by Mr. Noble, said he had refused to give the bicycle at first, but agreed to give it to the accused later on when he heard that he was employed in inoculating, and so on. Accused agreed to the terms on which witness was willing to give him the bicycle. About Rs. 150 were paid to accused under the cheque. Accused represented it as his pay bill for February last. It was for Rs. 250. It was a sort of receipt endorsed by the accused in favour of the Society. Rs. 100 were to be deducted as first instalment for the bicycle under the terms of agreement; and about Rs. 150 were paid to the accused. It was sent to the National Bank for collection, but it was returned uncollected. It was sent to the Municipality and refused. Subsequently a letter was written to the accused, who sent a reply to it on the 12th March. It ran: Sir,—With reference to your letter, I beg to state that it was because the Chief Accountant had not received pay-sheets that I troubled you to cash my pay. As soon as the pay bills are received by the Chief Accountant, I have told him to send the amount to you direct." More correspondence having been put in on the subject the letter written by witness to the accused on the 20th March was put in. It ran: "Dear Sir,—I am informed, I do not know with what truth, that you drew your salary for the month of February from the Municipality on the 8th instant. You are doubtless aware that, having obtained an advance of Rs. 250 on your pay for February from this Society, you were not entitled to salary from the Municipality which was due to the Army and Navy. I shall be glad, therefore, to receive your immediate denial of this report that has reached me, failing which I shall be obliged to hand the whole matter over to our solicitors, which I shall do to-morrow afternoon unless I either receive your denial or payment of the amount due to the Society before then." Accused subsequently came to witness, and said that the Municipality still owed him some money. The Municipality was written to on the subject, and the reply received was a denial that anything was due. There was absolutely no truth in the statement that witness wanted to give accused further time to pay the sum.

Cross-examined by Mr. Murzban: There was nothing in the endorsement on the receipt to suggest that it was to be sent to the National Bank for collection. As, however, the bank collected monies for the Society, the receipt was sent to it for collection in the ordinary course of business. When the receipt was presented to the Municipality, the Society was informed that it could not be paid without the authority of the Health Officer. Accused said he would go to the Municipality, and set it right in a few minutes. The Municipality evidently wanted with the receipt the pay-bill, or pay sheet, or whatever it might be called. Witness did not authorise Mr. Deane, the informant in the case, to state in the information he filed that the accused had absconded to Poona. They had heard that he had gone to Poona.

After further examination, the case was adjourned.

THE DOUBLE MURDER AT WALKESHWAR.

THE sixth and the last of the batch of accused concerned in the double murder of the Bhattia brother and sister at Walkeshwar, was brought to Bombay yesterday morning from his native village, Unao. The police had made enquiries, and ascertained that Binda, Anseri, which is the name of the accused, had left Bombay from Dadar station, whence he booked two travelling trunks. It was declared that one trunk belonged to him and the other to his brother Dwarka. One contained some gold and silver ornaments, and the other new suits of clothing. During his journey he was detained at Itarsi for two days in accordance with the plague regulations, and a halt was also made at Cawnpur. He reached Unao on Friday, the 22nd instant, when he was arrested. His box was opened before the District Magistrate of Cawnpur. A note of the contents was made. Accused will be placed before the magistrate, to-day, at the Mazagon Police Court.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

THE Right Rev. the Metropolitan of India and Ceylon has obtained six months and twenty days' leave on medical certificate. Dr. Johnson proceeds home very shortly, and will, while there, take part in the proceedings of the Lambeth Conference.

SIMLA seems determined not to be behind other towns in its loyalty to the Queen-Empress, for it has been decided that the residents at the summer capital of the Government of India are to send in a congratulatory commemoration address.

A SINGULAR mishap occurred at Sheerness on April 6 to the torpedo-boat destroyer Contest, attached to the Medway Instruction Flotilla. Returning from a cruise during the night, the vessel anchored off the Grain Bank of the Medway, and grounded as the tide went down, her stem sticking in the mud. A gunboat and pinnace were sent to her assistance, but the destroyer was in no danger, and, indeed, floated when the tide rose. Divers have been ordered to make an examination of the vessel, though it is not expected that she has received any damage.

FRESH proposals are about to be made by the Tramway Company to the Calcutta Municipality with reference to the introduction of an electric tramway service. The original proposal was that the Municipality should sanction an expenditure of £200,000 for the introduction of electric traction, and that this £200,000 should be added to the £400,000 of capital that the Company already has; so that, should the Corporation desire to acquire the Tramway at any time, they would have to pay a premium of 40 per cent. on it, or £840,000 in all. It is now proposed that the Municipality shall sanction the electric traction service and forego the track rent of Rs. 28,000, and that in lieu of paying this track rent the Tramway Company shall pay to the Corporation Rs. 25,000 per annum to be held by them as a fund to provide for renewals. The present proposals appear more reasonable and may lead to a satisfactory issue.

THE Board of Trade returns for March show that during the month the imports amounted to 40,655,114*l.*, as against 38,366,750*l.* in the same month last year, being an increase of 2,288,364*l.* The exports for the month were 21,647,269*l.*, compared with 20,449,623*l.* in March 1896, or an increase of 1,197,646*l.* For the three months ending March 31, the imports were 117,863,883*l.*, as against 112,317,342*l.* in the corresponding period of 1896, being an increase of 5,516,521*l.*, and exports for three months were 59,298,187*l.*, compared with 61,300,209*l.* in the same period last year, or a decrease of 2,002,022*l.*

HER MAJESTY'S hired transport Dilwara, on board which a case of plague occurred on her voyage home, arrived in Southampton Docks on April 7, having been detained in the river for purposes of fumigation. She had on board 45 officers, 9 ladies, 15 children, 923 men of all ranks, 38 women, and 89 children. The invalids, numbering 284, were landed at Netley Hospital, and the women and children that passed through the Colaba Depot were sent to the hospital hulk for disinfection. Five hundred and thirteen time-expired men and reservists went to Fort Brockhurst, and 102 various transfers to home battalions and furlough details. Two invalids only died on the passage.

THE Admiralty are preparing a programme of changes which, when complete, will practically mean a reconstitution of the force of battle-ships in the Mediterranean and Channel squadrons. The Empress of India, the Royal Sovereign, the Repulse and the resolution, now forming part of the Channel Squadron, are to be transferred to the Mediterranean Squadron, where they will replace the battleships Anson, Camperdown, Rodney, and Trafalgar. The vacancies thus created in the Channel Squadron will be filled by the commissioning of four ships of the Majestic type. There are five of these vessels now in course of construction—the Cæsar and Mars at Portsmouth, the Hannibal at Pembroke, and the illustrious and Jupiter at Chatham, all of which are in the completing stage; while two other of the same type, the Prince George at Portsmouth and the Victorious at Chatham have only recently been completed, as the Admiralty intend to strengthen the Channel Squadron by an additional battleship, besides those required to replace removals the next twelve months will find the Channel Squadron with no fewer than seven battleships, all of the Majestic type.

SEVERAL interesting and notable additions have been made to the collection of Gordon relics on view in the museum of the Royal United Service Institute, Whitehall, and a pleasantly written descriptive pamphlet concerning each item and its story has been prepared by Major Holden. Among the specially striking features of the display is the chart drawn by General Gordon, showing what he believed to have been the locality of the Garden of Eden. Readers of his "Reflections in Palestine" will well remember the significance, both outward and spiritual, which he attached to the sacred sites, and his speculations on this point led him to fix the spot upon a large submerged tract on the African coast, between Aden and Somaliland. The photograph taken in Brussels at the request of the King of the Belgians, just before starting for Khartoum, a ring constantly worn by him and a picture of the Bible used by him, and presented to the Queen by Miss Gordon, are also shown; and an autograph letter, written in 1882, to Sergeant W. H. Burke, of the Royal Engineers, with the gift of a copy of Byron's poems in return for the loan of a volume of Milton, speaks of kindly feelings towards his subordinates.

THE inquest on the body of Miss Camp, who was found murdered in a railway carriage at Waterloo Station on Feb. 11, was brought to a close at Lambeth on April 7. The principal witness was the man Arthur Marshall, who gave some account of his wanderings after he left Reading on the day of the murder. He appeared to be unable to supply any intelligible reason for his strange movements, why he considered the police were searching for him, or why he bought a moustache at Guildford. In the end the jury brought in a verdict of wilful murder against some person or persons unknown.

A TELEGRAM from the Times' correspondent at Zanzibar, dated April 6, says:—The Sultan to-day published a decree abolishing the legal status of slavery. The decree comprises a scheme of compensation for slaves legally held, unless they have been cruelly treated. Many of the Arabs in the town were summoned by the Sultan to hear the decree published in the Palace. Sir Lloyd Mathews was the only European present. The Arabs are pleased with the compensation, and there are no signs of trouble. A parliamentary paper has been issued containing the instructions given to Mr. Hardinge, the British agent at Zanzibar, respecting the abolition of the legal status of slavery in the islands of Zanzibar and Pemba. The decision of the Government, in fulfilment of their pledges given in Parliament, is in favour of such abolition, and Mr. Hardinge is instructed to advise the Sultan to that effect. The parliamentary paper includes a telegram from Mr. Hardinge, dated March 29, stating that the Sultan accepts the proposed decrees abolishing the legal status of slavery

AN enthusiastic mass meeting, attended by three thousand Hindus, was held at Gya, on Friday. It was unanimously resolved to adopt the draft address prepared by the Maharaja of Durbhunga for presentation to Her Majesty, on the occasion of the "Diamond" Jubilee. It was resolved also to collect subscriptions for a Town Hall to commemorate the occasion. Continued cheers were given for her Majesty and the Maharaja of Durbhunga. The meeting closed with shouts of "Victoria Maharani ki jai!"

THE BOMBAY SCOTTISH ORPHANAGE SOCIETY.

THE annual meeting of the members of the Society was held, last evening, in the vestry of St. Andrew's Church, to receive the report of the committee for the last year and to appoint office-bearers for the current year. Brigade-Surgeon Lieutenant-Colonel Arnott presided, and about a dozen other members were present. The Secretary, Mr. F. A. Spencer, read the notice convening the meeting and the report of the committee, from which the following are extracts:—

The committee beg to submit their report for the year 1896.

Number of children in the school.—The number of children on the roll at the close of the year was 33 boys and 22 girls, withdrawls during the year number 16 (14 boys and 2 girls), while 8 boys and 1 girl have been admitted during the same period. The two girls withdrawn returned to their friends. Of the boys withdrawn three found employment as appren ice engineers and five in Government and Mercantile offices, the other six returned to their friends.

Health.—During the year of report the inmates of the orphanage have, on the whole, continued to enjoy excellent health. This is doubtless largely due to the sanitary measures adopted in the annual migration to Matheran during the hot weather months. Since the close of the year to which this report pertains, the bubonic plague raged with so much severity in the neighbourhood of Mahim, that the committee deemed it advisable to remove the children to Matheran earlier in the year than usual. The work of repairing the Sanitorium was accordingly pushed on and the orphanage was moved to the hills on the 8th February last, arrangements having been made to carry on the school work at Matheran until the hot weather vacation.

Matheran.—During the hot weather months of 1895 the children were as usual taken to Matheran, and the committee have again to record their great appreciation of the interest taken by the visitors to the hill in the children and of the efforts made to amuse them during their stay at the Sanatorium. The special thanks of the committee are due to the superintendent, Dr. Hay, for much personal kindness and attention.

Education.—The school was examined on the 7th December last, by Mr. J. Oliver, Educational Inspector, N.D., a copy of whose report is appended. It will be seen that Mr. Oliver has expressed his satisfaction with the arrangements for the physical comfort and training of the children, and although there is room for improvement in the results of the school work, the committee have little doubt that, with the return of Mr. and Mrs. Anderson, future reports will be more completely satisfactory.

Scripture knowledge.—The children were examined in scripture by the Reverend T. H. Greig, whose report on this important branch of the children's training, a copy of which is attached, will be read with interest.

Finance.—During the year, donations from mofussil subscribers unfortunately show a marked decrease and the committee, while thanking local subscribers for their continued generous support, would ask all interested in the orphanage to further the ends of the society by bringing to the notice of residents in the mofussil the fact that the sphere from which children admitted to the benefit of the institution are drawn, is by no means limited to Bombay and that the orphanage cannot, therefore, be regarded as having merely local claims. The society is largely dependent on the public for its support, and the committee trust that the generosity with which their appeal for funds has been met in past years, may again be extended to the orphanage. On account of the legacy mentioned in the last annual report, bequeathed by Mr. W. P. Sayers, to the orphanage, sums of Rs. 22,000 in cash and Rs. 1,000 in 3½ per cent. Government paper have been received after deduction of solicitor's charges &c. The remainder of the bequest in the hands of the Executor of the estate, on 31st December, 1896, consisted of railway stock of the nominal value of £100 (arrangements for the realization of which have lately been made), and of a sum of Rs. 89015 retained by the Executor to meet probate and death duties in London and sundry other expenses in connection with the legacy. Out of the sums received, the committee have added Rs. 11,000 to the Supplementary Foundation Fund, the balance being set aside to meet heavy unavoidable outlay for special repairs to the society's buildings, both at Mahim and at Matheran, and also for necessary furniture and fittings which have long been required at Mahim. The total cost of these repairs and renewals amounts to Rs. 5,176-2, the greater portion of which sum will appear in the accounts of the current year (1897).

The Staff.—The committee welcome back to the sphere of their former labours, the superintendent, Mr. Anderson, and Mrs. Anderson, whose successful management of the orphanage in past years has been so conspicuous and of whose personal interest in their work and in the welfare of those committed to their care, the committee desire again to record their testimony. Mrs. Prentice, the pupil teachers, and the other members of the orphanage staff have given complete satisfaction in the performance of their several duties.

The report to Government of Mr. Oliver, the Educational Inspector, N. D., dated December 14 last, stated:—

At the time of the inspection 65 boys and girls were present out of 70 on the rolls. The general results of the inspection were as under:—

Standards VIII-VII.—The boys and girls in these two classes possess a good knowledge of English, poetry and Algebra, and a fairly good knowledge of English History and French. The map-drawing of these classes was good, and the exercise books were written fairly well.

Standard VI.—In this class the boys and girls did well in English and parsing, arithmetic and geography. The exercise-books of the class were written fairly well.

Standard V.—In this class the children possess a good knowledge of English, history, and geography. The exercise-books of the class were well written.

Standard IV.—In this class the children acquitted themselves fairly well in English and parsing and well in geography. The handwriting in the copy-books, was good.

Standard III.—In this class the children have a fairly good elementary knowledge of English and parsing, and a good knowledge of arithmetic. The copy-books of the class were written fairly well.

Standard II.—In this class the children did fairly well in English, and well in arithmetic. The handwriting in the copy-books was fairly good. The school registers and other books connected with the management of the school had been carefully kept, and had been signed by the school authorities. The needlework, throughout the school was good and of a practical nature.

Physical Education.—Considerable attention is paid to physical education in this school. The boys play cricket, and receive instruction in military drill. The girls are also taught physical drill. This school possesses an excellent building, and an adequate supply of furniture, books, maps, and pictures. I may state, in conclusion, that, at the time of the inspection the general appearance of all the children was neat, and their manners were good. The arrangements for the maintenance of discipline in this school are satisfactory, and great attention is paid to the comfort and welfare of the children.

The certificate, return E 1, 16, and the memo. showing the classific ation of the children at the time of the inspection, are hereto attached.

The Chairman then addressed the meeting. He congratulated the committee on the wisdom of sending the children from Mahim to Matheran during the epidemic, and on the satisfactory results detailed in the report. As the majority of the children came from the mofussil, it was incumbant, in the chairman's opinion, on Scotchmen residing in the mofussil and in other parts of India to support the society as far as practicable. A large portion of the splendid bequest from Mr. W. R. Sayers had been expended in repairs and improvements which had for a long time been deemed necessary by reason of the premises falling into dis repair. The chairman thanked the office-bearers, the honorary secretary, Mr. L. J. Robertson, the treasurer, Mr. Campbell, and the auditor, Mr. Irvine, for their zeal and devotion in promoting the interests and welfare of the society. (Applause.)

On the motion of the chairman, seconded by the Rev. T. H. Greig, the report was adopted and ordered to be printed as the report of the Bombay Scottish Orphanage Society for the year 1896.

On the motion of Mr. H. Conder, seconded by Mr. J. M. Dick, the committee for the current year was appointed as follows:—

The secretary then read the following report received from Mr. Anderson regarding the distribution of prizes to the children at Matheran: "Owing to the school being removed from Mahim to Matheran, the annual distribution of prizes could not be held as usual in the former place in February and it was decided to take advantage of the Easter holidays, when there would be a number of the members of the committee on the hill, and give the children their prizes then. The distribution passed off successfully in the open air in front of the Orphanage on

SPECTACLES & EYE GLASSES

MESSRS. MARCKS & Company, Limited, are the only Representatives in India for Dr. MENIST, of AMSTERDAM and LONDON, whose Perfect Pebble Spectacles are so widely and favourably known throughout the country. The Eye is the most delicate organ of sense, and too great care and pains cannot be lavished on perfecting, to the utmost extent of our knowledge, those artificial aids which under certain ages are found to be indispensable to comfort. Spectacles may be obtained from us for Half the Price of Dr. MENIST'S, but when it becomes a question of economising a little money at the risk of injuring the sight, the economy is a very double one.

In DR. MENIST'S PERFECT PEBBLE SPECTACLES every detail has been most carefully studied. Not only does he use the purest natural Crystal or Pebble, which is infinitely better for the Eye than any artificial Glass, but cuts the Lenses in strict accordance with the latest improvements of Science, combined with a principle discovered by himself, which renders them quite unapproachable by those of any other maker. The frames, too, are the results of years of patient study and gradual improvement, leaving now little to be desired.

Each Eye most carefully examined and measured and suitable Lenses supplied to remedy every defect in vision.

The Bombay Gazette

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 28, 1897.

TWENTY-SEVEN years ago the Government of India offered a reward of £5,000 for a machine or process to furnish rhea fibre at £15 a ton. From 1870 till now India has practically done nothing with rhea fibre, the strongest and the most lustrous of all fibres. France, not India, was the first country to take in hand the question of the utilisation of rhea, and has now several mills with an aggregate of 12,000 spindles, while India has not one. Germany has 11,000 spindles, the largest existing mill for the fibre being at Emmerdingen in Baden. Mr. Baumgartner, the managing director of that mill, has not only overcome all difficulties in the use of the material, but has made it available for many purposes that were not foreseen. Seven thousand five hundred spindles and three hundred hands spin yarn varying from five thousand to forty thousand yards per pound. In England there are four or five mills; in America two. We should be glad to hear that Bombay had one. In default of that source of satisfaction it is something to be thankful for that the Supreme Government are actively going into the matter afresh, so that this country may not be wholly out of the running in the development and utilisation of the remarkable nettle of which India ought to grow sufficient for the manufacturers of the world at large. Mr. T. Barraclough recently placed before the Society of Arts what so competent an authority as Sir George Birdwood characterised a thoroughly practical paper, giving for the first time data as to the quantity of the fibre now being consumed in Europe. In a brief and most interesting supplementary paper Sir George conveniently classes the Indian, the Malayan, and the Chinese varieties of the fibre by distinguishing the first as "rhea," the second as "ramie"—the name, by which it is known on the Continent—and the third by the well-known designation "Chinese grass." Very little of the plant used in European factories is obtained from India—a fact which suggests the reflection that here again as in the case of tusser silk an enterprise first stimulated by the Government of India resulted in benefit to countries other than India. It has been generally held—and Mr. Barraclough evidently is under the same impression—that rhea being of tropical or sub-tropical origin cannot be cultivated in northern countries. But that does not appear to be the case. It is successfully cultivated in Algeria, in France, and even in Germany, where it is able to stand the severe winter, and also in Spain. The Princes Murat are extensively cultivating it in the Caucasus; it is grown in Mexico, Venezuela, and in Arizona. Sir George Birdwood relates the facility with which he cultivated the Assam rhea in the Victoria Gardens, Bombay, where it grew so luxuriantly that it had to be constantly cut back so as not to overrun the place. His conclusion is that the cultivation of rhea seems to succeed everywhere—except in India, its native country. A finer fibre is obtained from rhea grown in the north temperate zone, and the stronger and larger in the tropics. "China grass" with its much prized fibre is the rhea of the north temperate zone; ramie is the rhea of the tropical zone; and the original Assam rhea is a native of the northern sub-tropical region.

It ought to be decidedly encouraging to enterprizing agriculturists in this Presidency to know that Sir George Birdwood found that rhea would grow naturally everywhere from the top of the ghats to the seashore of Bombay, while all the rhea used for the experiments of Dr. Forbes-Watson was grown at Strathfieldsaye in Hampshire by the second Duke of Wellington. Evidently it is a plant that will accommodate itself to great varieties of soil and climate. Mr. Barraclough referred to the difficulties and discouragments attending efforts to grow rhea in India on a large scale. Efforts to raise the plant from seed having generally failed, it was assumed that the best way to propagate it was by stem or root cuttings. That process, effectual enough on a small scale, is very slow and costly when it is a question of stocking 10,000 acres, and moreover the plant grown from cuttings shows a tendency to degenerate. Mr. Matthieu of Singapore bethought him of studying the method of growing from seed given in the precepts of the "Imperial Treatise of Chinese Agriculture," which formulates the most minute directions. It instructs the cultivator to prepare a light sandy soil, which, after being dug over three times and then flattened down with a spade and watered, is to be lightly raked over. Then the seed is to be well mixed with light earth and placed on the top of the bed, but not covered with earth or watered. The sun is to be kept off with a slanting roof of mats, moistened with a broom dipped in water if the bed beneath becomes dry. When the plants are two inches high the ground may be slightly moistened to a depth of three inches; then the seedlings can be planted out. This process being exactly followed, the results were most gratifying. Seed cultivation thus becomes the quickest, the most economical, and the most practical for a large estate. It might be worth while to take some more hints on the subject from the Chinese, and even to import Chinese families skilled in the preparation of the fibre by the elimination of the bark and the wooly tissue, which they do by hand and European inventions seek to do by ingenious and costly machines. M. Faure, a skilled French engineer, who grew his own ramie for experiments at Linousins, has invented an admirable machine which prepares the fibre, freeing it from woody matter, skin, and a large proportion of the superfluous juice. But as only five per cent. of a ton of rhea consists of fibre, the saving of freight in shipping the latter only to Europe would be very great.

It is of the first importance that the fibre should be freed from its incumbrance at the place of origin by cheap labour. Sir George Birdwood very reasonably insists on the immense importance of stimulating the output of rhea fibre in India in sufficient quantities to meet the requirements of manufacturers in Europe. It must be sent to its destination in the most portable form, so that the buyer will know at once what he is buying and will be in no doubt as to the quality of the fibre that will be disclosed after undergoing a complicated process of decortication. Hand-cleaned China grass is worth in the European market £35 per ton. When imported as "ribbons" rhea has to lose sixty per cent. in bark and the like, which is a loss on freight and railway carriage for worthless encumbrance equal to £8 a ton. This shows the vital importance of preparing the fibre for the manufacturer in the country of origin, whether by hand labour or by machinery. Once the supply is certain and adequate all the rest will follow, and the new textile will have a great future before it. The lecturer laid before the society yarns of great beauty and of unequalled strength made in England, France, and Germany. In the latter country yarn is manufactured on a very large scale, consisting of a thread of silk and a thread of ramie twisted together. Ramie is substituted for silk for upholsterers' goods, curtains, and laces. It is also used with cotton fibre, to which it adds strength and distinction. It readily takes dyes of all kinds while keeping its beautiful lustre. It will suspersede cotton in the goods now made with wefts of silk and the cotton warp. The short rhea fibre separated by combing from the long is termed "noils." They are sold at from four pence to six pence per pound. When mixed with wool or cotton they give them a strength and a lustre which greatly adds to their durability and their appearance. But this useful and versatile nettle can do a great deal more than all this. It can make a ship's cable three times stronger than the best manilla; it will tranform itself into a sail that can brave cyclone or typhoon. If we take 100 as the standard of strength of its fibre, that of cotton is twelve, of silk thirteen, of manilla thirty-four. A fibre which grows everywhere, and can be made of almost universal utility—as celuloid, as spun cotton, as sail cloth, or as wearing apparel of the most delicate texture, is surely worth the attention of agriculturists and merchants in India.

THE diminution in mortality from plague throughout the Presidency last week, though not so great as in the preceding seven days, was still very considerable, totalling to 212. An examination of the figures, however, goes to show that by far the greater part of this decrease was obtained in the three plague-stricken cities, and that in the Districts the net dimin ution was but slow. Bombay itself can claim credit for nearly fifty per cent. of the improvement, whereas in the previous week it only contributed five to the total reduction of 299. It is interesting to note in passing that if the theory that all deaths above the average have been due to plague—the hypothesis constantly affirmed in some quarters—the logical conclusion to be drawn now is that fully half the deaths registered as from plague should be put down to other causes. When the reported mortality from the epidemic is deducted from the total, the number left is 130 below the average, this figure being very far in excess of the natural reduction due to diminished population at the present time. In Karachi three deaths less were recorded than in the previous week. In Poona, there was a drop of no less than 35 per cent, and for the first time for many weary weeks fatal cases of the plague were below 100. This rate of decrease has only to continue three weeks more, and there will no longer be any necessity for the house-to-house inspection by British soldiers of which the people complain with so much bitterness, and not without reason. The three cities have contributed between them three-fourths of the net decrease in deaths, leaving the districts a net improvement of 53. We are glad to find on reference to the detailed statistics that, in the Surat Collectorate, Bulsar has seen the worst of the visitation, the deaths having gone down fifty per cent. during the week. At Mugod too the improvement has been almost equally marked, and throughout the district generally there is a distinct change for the better. In the Thana Collectorate the plague has all but disappeared in Bandora, but in the little township of Coorla the progress towards supression is but gradual. At Bassein, where the Municipality according to the last official reports "takes little interest in public affairs, and sanitation is very much neglected," the mortality has increased, the return for last week showing 40 deaths. At Sopara, Agashi, and Nagaon, things remain about the same, while at Tarapur and Chinchani there has been a very remarkable diminution. The deaths in the Thana District have gone down from 233 to 188. Kolaba, on the other hand, shows no improvement, the plague still being very bad at Revdanda and Panvell, and having increased in intensity at Alibag, where 54 deaths were registered. In view of the constant communication by sea between Bombay and Alibag this fact may be held to justify the action of the authorities in not allowing in-coming passengers having even the slightest unfavourable symptoms to go free until they have been kept under observation for a couple of days. We are glad to find that there has been a decrease in the number of fatal cases in the dominions of H. H. the Gaekwar of Baroda. The occurence of four deaths from plague in the capital city which has hitherto escaped almost unscathed is, however, disconcerting, especially as most rigorous measures have been taken there from the commencement. The Kathiawar States are more fortunate, the deaths having diminished from 13 to one. We extremely regret to record a sudden and very serious outbreak at Cutch Mandvie. Up to the beginning of last week fifteen fatal cases had occurred there, and 40 in other places in the territories of his Highness the Rao of Kutch. Last week the deaths at Mandvie ran up to the terrible total of 166, this being, next to Bombay, the highest mortality of any place in the Presidency. These alarming figures have largely tended to neutralize the gratifying progress made in other parts of the Presidency. In Hyderabad and Sukkur the disease continues in epidemic form, although in the latter place there is a gratifying decrease. On the whole nowhere within the Presidency limits is the outlook worse than at Cutch Mandvie. The epidemic first occurred in the Mandvie of this city. Will the Kathiawar port of the same name be the last place to suffer severely from the visitation?

THE week's season reports show an increase of practically a hundred thousand on the return of people on famine relief, and very little improvement in prospects. Harvesting of late crops is in progress in parts of Sind, the Deccan, Konkan, Belgaum, and Baroda. Preparations for next season have commenced in parts of fifteen districts. Fodder is sufficient, except in the Deccan, Shikarpur, and parts of Karachi and Baroda. Cot on-picking continues in Ahmedabad, Broach, Belgaum, and Baroda. Condition of agricultural stock is deteriorating in Poona, Ahmednagar, Sholapur, Bijapur, and Belgaum; healthy elsewhere, except in parts of Sind, Khandeish, Ratnagiri, and Kanara. Some rain has fallen in parts of Bombay, as in Madras, but without much effect. In Madras drinking water is generally insufficient and what there is is failing in some parts. Standing crops are poor except on irrigated lands. In Bengal the prospect is somewhat brighter. Some rain has fallen. Sugarcane, indigo, and spring rice are doing well. There is, however, still a scarcity of drinking water in most districts of the North-West Provinces and Oudh. In most districts the harvest has been reaped, and threshing and winnowing have begun in the remaining districts. Harvesting is near completion. Opium-collection is finished and weighments have begun. Cane sowings are practically complet

FINANCE AND COMMERCE.

(FROM OUR COMMERCIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

LONDON, APRIL .

MAINTAINING its usual character, the output of the Indian mines during the past quarter shows a very satisfactory increase as compared with the first three months of last year. The return from neither the Ooregum nor the Nundydroog mines, it is true, have come up to expectations, but an improvement may reasonably be anticipated during the current three months. Although the Champion Reef shows an increase of 10,727 oz., the grade per ton is not quite so good; both the tailings and the cyanide process, however, yield most satisfactory results. An interim dividend of 3s. per share has recently been declared in respect of the year ending September. The chief feature about the Mysore yield is the increase in the grade obtained from the mill, which is now no less than 1¼ oz. per ton, the tailings also maintain the remarkable average of 6 dwt. per ton. The cyanide process continues to give a very inadequate return, but in view of the chairman's recent assurence that the treatment only cost 3s. 6d. per ton, it is still moderately remunerative. As anticipated, a balance dividend of 7s. per share has been paid for 1896, thus completing the truly marvelious distribution of 100 per cent. for twelve months. As against the unfortunate falling off in the yield from the Ooregum mine the shareholders cannot but be comforted by the steadily diminishing cost of working, which was equivalent to nearly 1 dwt. per ton during the past year. The recent reports point to a distinct improvement in the near future. A total dividend of 6s. per share on the ordinary and 8s. per share on the preference has been completed during the past quarter. Not only has the output at the Nundydroog increased by some 2,429 oz., but the grade also shews a moderate improvement; the insignificant amount of tailings treated, however, contribute little towards the prosperity of this mine. A distribution of 32½ per cent., or 6s. 6d. per share, has been made for 1896, which is a material improvement over the dividend for 1895. At one time, there was cause for scepticism as to the outlook at the Coromandel mine, but in view of the recent results obtained, confidence in the future may be understood. With a return of less than 13 dwt. per ton, the management have declared a dividend of 1s. per share, which is an achievement worthy of records mong Colar mines. From recent reports the Mysore West is likely to be the next of these mines to bid for public favour.

The figures of the Board of Trade returns for the month of March are much more encouraging than those of the two previous months of the current year. It is true that allowance has to be made for an extra working day, there having been only four Sundays in the past month as compared with five in March last year, but, even so, there is a distinct improvement in the volume of business. It has also to be borne in mind that a portion of the increase in the exports shown will prove of a temporary character, as goods were rushed forward to the United States in large quantities in order to avoid the enhanced rates under the new tariff. On the other hand, it has likewise to be remembered, that in March last year there was an increase in the exports of about 10 per cent. as compared with the corresponding month in 1895. The value of the imports during the month of March amounted in the aggregate to £40,565,114, an increase of £2,288,364, or 5·9 per cent., while for the three months ending with March there has been an expansion in the import trade of 5½ millions sterling, or close upon 5 per cent. For March last year over 1895 there was a gain of 11·3 per cent. Most of the increase in the value of the imports for the month is, as usual, due to food and raw materials, but there was a decrease of £570,000 in raw cotton values, and of £300,000 in sugar. Wool, on the other hand, rose £816,000, mainly owing to arrivals from Australia. Of the addition of £415,000 to food supplies, wheat increased by £293,000 in value, though the quantity received was less by 136,000 cwt. The largest arrivals were from the Pacific States, Russian shipments showing a decrease. There was a large increase of about 2,100,000 cwts. in the arrivals of Indian corn from the United States, but shipments from other quarters fell off, and the total increase of this grain for the month was 1,006,000 cwts., valued at £52,000 additional. The total exports for the month show a gain of £1,197,646, or 5·8 per cent., which reduces the falling off for the first quarter of the year to £2,002,022, or 3·2 per cent. With regard to exports to the United States, the most noticeable increase is in wool, the shipments of which to the States are £160,000 higher. Jute manufactures have expanded £102,000, and worsted tissues £109,000. The exports of metals have largely increased during the month, giving a gain of nearly half-a-million. Of the gain of £321,000 in machinery exports, the chief feature to note is the increased sale of textile machinery to Japan, India, and Germany. Shipments of locomotives were on a larger scale to India, South America, and Australia; but mining machinery has been apparently in less demand. Coal exports to the Continent increased by £187,000, and wool by £147,000. The shipments of cotton, yarn, and twist show an increase of 766,000lb., in spite of a considerable reduction in the quantity sent to India; China, and especially Turkey, have taken cotton yarns on a comparatively liberal scale during the month. As regards cotton piece goods, there is, of course, a large falling off in the shipments to Bombay, but the shipments of Bengal and Burma, though smaller than last year, have been fairly liberal, and those to Madras show a marked increase. The shipments to Turkey of all descriptions of goods show considerable increases. The increase of £21,000 in linen piece goods has been chiefly to the United States.

A Tonquin paper makes some interesting statements respecting the progress of the French silver dollar struck for circulation, primarily, in French Indo-China. The weight of this dollar was originally made appreciably higher than that of the Mexican dollar, the Japanese yen, or the new British dollar, with the object of promoting its acceptance in the Far East. For some time very great difficulty was experienced in getting it into circulation, as in the cases of attempts by other countries to circulate trade dollars, but more recently, it is stated, success has been apparently attained. When there was reason to believe that it had established itself, at least amongst the annamites, who have gradually become habituated to its use, the original weight was reduced; but it still contains slightly more silver than its competitors, the Mexican, Japanese, and British dollars, and it is hoped that its currency will continue to extend; indeed it is now said that supplies disappear in China as soon as they arrive. Probably the Chinese have discovered that it contains more silver than the competing dollars, and speedily melt it. The question is now being asked whether the advantages of thus supplying the Far East with dollars of French production really compensate France for the considerable cost of their production and transport.

Messrs. Gow, Wilson, and Stanton, the well-known London firm of tea and shase brokers, have issued a work on "Tea Prodocing" Companies of India and Ceylon. The volume is a convenient reference-book, giving the history, results, and general financial details of about 130 Indian and Ceylon tea-planting enteprises capitalised in sterling. In the preface the compilers include some striking figures illustrating the importance to which this interesting department of investment has attained. About £35,000,000 of British capital is invested in tea-growing in India and Ceylon, nearly a million labourers are employed, and nearly a quarter of a million pounds of tea is produced. In most cases the results up to the end of 1895 only are given, as the annual reports are not, as a rule, issued, and cannot be well issued, until May-July of the year following that to which they relate. The average profit on the working of 56 Indian companies, which, being now in full working order are regarded as establishing some sort of standard, was £7 15s. 7d. per cent on the capital employed in the year referred to the aggregate paid-up capital of these undertakings being £6,907,000. The profit per pound of tea was 2·21d. A similar representative table cannot be given for Ceylon, as many of the companies there are interested in other products besides tea. Special features in these enterprises to which attention is called, are the fact that they have not been saddled with heavy promotion expenses, that, as a rule, they are controlled and directed by practical and specially experienced business men, and that the majority of the companies have a reputation for full and lucid annual statements. As regards the future of the industry, it is estimated that there is a natural expansion in the consumption of tea in this country, of 4,000,000 lbs. to 5,000,000 lbs. per annum, and that outside the United Kingdom the demand for Indian and Ceylon teas is continually expanding. Messrs. Gow, Wilson, and Stanton's book undoubtedly supplies a want, and will be welcomed by all interested in the development of our Eastern dependencies.

Apropos it may be mentioned that the same firm in their East Indian and Ceylon tea share report say that, though the market has continued on the whole quiet, more business has been doing than was the case a few weeks ago. The reports on the working of the companies last year are now coming out freely, and it is stated that, in spite of the higher average rate of exchange ruling last year, as compared with 1895, the results are proving satisfactory, especially in the case of companies which made tea of good quality. The small quantity of Indian tea which has latterly been brought forward has sold at rather reduced quotations, most of the lots closing the output from different gardens. The market for Ceylon tea has been depressed by heavy arrivals, and the knowledge that large quantities are on the way; the weekly average price for some time past has been above the average for the corresponding period last year, but has now fallen to the same level. The following final dividends for the year have been announced:—

Several sittings have been held by the Select Committee of the House of Commons appointed to inquire into the working of the Merchandise Marks Act, 1887, and some interesting evidence upon the main subject under investigation was submitted. The law itself is a remarkable one. Its enactment constituted a bolder and broader attempt than had ever before been made to shield buyers of commodities on the one hand from fraudulent or misleading descriptions, and on the other hand to guard producers or sellers from improper competition founded on misrepresentation as to the quality and origin of competing merchandise. In another respect, too, it was a new departure. Unlike the old Act of 1862, it cast upon an accused person the onus of proving that he acted innocently, instead of requiring the accuser to prove at the outset a fraudulent intention. Moreover, it subjected to prosecution all persons who in any way are accessories to false description, except servants acting under bona-fide instructions from their employers, whenever, as a condition of exemption, they give full information relative to the case. It was also designedly made a criminal Act, providing for penalty by imprisonment as well as by fine. In short, it was a very stringent, if not a drastic measure. Partly for this reason, and partly because some of its provisions are exceedingly vague, the Act of 1887 has inspired producers of and dealers in merchandise with respectful caution. Indeed the caution has in some respects been excessive. A strange misconception, for example, as to the requirement of marks indicating the foreign origin of imported goods has existed ever since the statute came into force, and even now, after an experince of nearly ten years, this misconception is still widely prevalent. It is imagined that all such merchandise, if bearing any English words at all, must be so marked. But in fact the requirment is limited to cases in which the English words are or purport to be the name or trade mark of a firm in the United Kingdom, or the name, or a colourable imitation of the name, of a place in this country. There can be no doubt, however, that the Act has done very useful service in promoting the habit of accurate description of merchandise in this country and elsewhere, in nearly all branches of trade. So much the severest critics of the measure are ready to admit. But for some years the conviction has been widespread and growing amongst the mercantile and manufacturing community that the portion of the Act applying to imported merchandise has done serious injury to our own commerce and industries by unnecessarily obstructing our foreign trade, by checking our transit trade, and by diverting business from British shipowners to those of other nationalities. It was mainly for the purpose of investigating these and similar allegations that the Select Committee was appointed.

General satisfaction is expressed at the action of the Bank of England directors in reducing the official minimum from 3 to 2½ per cent. yesterday. The movement had been pretty generally looked for, and had little material effect on the value of money outside. The bill-brokers had anticipated the reduction by lowering their deposit rates earlier in the week, and though there was some informal discussion yesterday on the subject, nothing further was done. The joint stock banks, however, promptly reduced their allowances by ½ per cent. Inasmuch as the position of the Bank of England shows considerably less strength than it did a week ago, the decision of the directors is taken to mean a more assured feeling in the best informed quarters with regard to the political outlook. This is probably the case, but as we pointed out some time ago, it was obvious that the anomalous condition that has been an existence for some weeks past could not continue indefinitely. The official minimum even at the reduced level is still nearly 1½ per cent. higher than the open market rate for three months' bank bills. Some important movements are shown in this week's Bank of England return, but they are mainly in connection with the distribution of the dividends on Home Government Funds and Bank Stock. The release of dividends has caused a reduction of a trifle over five millions in Public Deposits, while the "Rest," or undivided profit of the Bank, is 661,490 lower. The market has been able to liquidate its indebtedness to the Bank under the head of Other Securities to the extent of nearly a million, while there is also a decrease of half-a-million in the Government securities. At the same time bankers' balances have been raised by upwards of 2¾ millions, the other deposits now standing at fully 41¼ millions. Notwithstanding the receipts of over £300,000 in gold from abroad, the coin and bullion item is lower by £945,923, while there has also been an expansion in the note circulation of £359,320, the result being a loss in reserve of over a million and a quarter.

A CORRESPONDENT who recently wrote to Lord Charles Beresford on the subject of the proposed large increase in the French Navy has received the following reply:—Lord Charles Beresford does not regard "programmes" with any disquietude, and in view of the statesmanlike declaration of the First Lord that "should any abnormal programme be actually put into execution, the Government will reconsider their position," his lordship regards the position with much satisfaction. Lord Charles Beresford does not disguise from himself that more ships and more men are points that must be dealt with in future Estimates; but this year the Government have done remarkably well, because they have directed their efforts more to utilising and organising the resources we have than in showy additions to numerical strength. His lordship is so pleased to see that all the auxiliaries of defence, in which we have so long been deficient, have been attended to, that he thinks it would be unfair to the Government not to give them every credit for the evidence (which their Estimates exhibit) that they have a definite plan of campaign. At the same time, it would be useless and unwise to continue to ask for more now that the Estimates are passed. Criticism to be of use should be practical, and in reply to your query, his lordship desires me to say that he is more than satisfied with the Government proposals for this year, but that there will be no relaxation of pressure if it is required at a future time.

THE QUEEN'S COMMEMORATION.

MASS MAHOMEDAN MEETING AT MUZAFFERABAD.

YESTERDAY afternoon, the Mahomedans of Bombay mustered in strong force to mark their tribute of loyalty and devotion to Her Majesty Queen Victoria, Empress of India, and to express their heartfelt joy at the approaching completion of the sixtieth year of Her Majesty's reign. Both Sunnis and Shiahs and various other sects of the Mahomedan community joined to give their testimony to the great esteem and love in which Her Majesty is held by the Mussulmans of Bombay. In response to the invitations signed by about seventy-six leading and representative men of the various sects, most of whom were present at the meeting, large numbers of Mahomedens began to arrive at Muzafferabad, at least two hours before the appointed time, and by four o'clock the spacious hall of Mr. Haji Cassum Jusuf's place was crowded to its utmost capacity, every inch of space having its occupant. The staircase leading to the hall was crammed to excess, and hundreds of people took possesaion of the spacious garden and the hall on the ground-floor, which was also crowded to suffocation. The idea of the meeting originated with Khan Bahadur Cassum Mitha and Mr. Mir Aun Ali, to whose efforts in a great measure its success was due. Khan Bahadur Cassum Mitha put himself in communication with Mr. Haji Oomer Jamal, Mr. Suleman Abdul Wahed, Mr. Haji Cassum Jusuf, Mr. Haji Jackeria Haji Ahmed Patel, Mr. Haji Ismail Haji Jusuf, and others. The meeting would have been held long ago but for the illness of Khan Bahadur Cassum Mitha, whose friends will be glad to hear he is progressing favourably. During his illness, Mr. Oomer Jamal and Mr. Suleman Abdul Wahed arranged the details of the meeting. A beautiful gold casket, bearing the coat-of-arms, and artistically engraved, has been made at a heavy cost, and the address will be enclosed in it. His Highness Sultan Mahomed Shah Aga Khan, who takes a deal of interest in every popular and loyal movement, was then wired to kindly come down to Bombay to preside at the meeting. The telegram was sent by Mr. Haji Suleman Abdul Wahed and Mr. Oomer Jamal, both being active promoters of the meeting. Although it was at a personal inconvenience for him to come to Bombay, his Highness readily complied with the request, and arrived yesterday morning, having seat his Mukhi, Cassum Meesa, hither a day previous.

His Highness Aga Khan, in opening the proceedings, explained the object of the meeting. Loyalty to the British Raj was the key-note of his eloquent speech. His Highness enumerated the incalculable advantages which they enjoyed under the British rule, which was shining like the sun on the earth, illuminating even dark spots. His Highness compared the just, benevolent, and glorious reign of her Majesty with that of Nosherwan, an ancient Irani ruler, whose rule was productive of immense advantages to his people, and whose memory is still cherished with feelings of reverence by Zoroastrians as well as Mahomedans. After his Highness had concluded his remarks, which were punctuated with frequent applause, Mr. Mir Aun Ali read the address, which was full of loyal sentiments towards her Majesty's Government. In moving the adoption of the address, Mr. Aun Alj made an eloquent speech in which he dwelt upon the benefits which accrued to them under Her Majesty's rule. She was in every sense of the word a mother of her subjects. They loved her as their mother, and were ready to sacrifice their lives and property to uphold the dignity of her vast Empire. In her reign, the proverb of a wolf and a lamb drinking water at one and the same fountain, was exemplified. Under the shining light of her glorious rule, Christians, Mahomedans, Hindus, and Parsees lived together in peace, harmony, and happiness, and their security was the utmost anxiety of her Majesty's just Government.

His Highness did so amid loud applause.

His Highness Aga Khan then said: Gentleman and Brethren of the Faith,—Last week I was honoured with and delighted to receive a wire from my friends, Messrs. Haji Oomer Jamal and Haji Suleman Abdul Wahed, on behalf of the Moslem community of Bombay, asking me to join with you in this loyal and laudable object, which we have assembled here to-day to accomplish. The honour which you have conferred upon me this afternoon by electing me to preside over your meeting, is so great that I cannot find appropriate words to thank you adequately. It is further gratifying to me to observe representatives of the various sects of the Mahomedan community emulating with one another to give a tangible shape to their inner sentiments concerning this praiseworthy movement—(cheers)—which has met with the universel approval of the Moslem community. (Loud cheers.) The presence among us to-day of the representatives of Persian, Arab, Memon, Konkni, Pathan, Khoja, Bora, and other Mahomedan communities who have combined to commemorate the completion of the sixtieth year of Her Majesty the Queen on the mightiest throne in the world, is a clear and unmistakable proof of their spontaneous and genuine desire to honour the most august and glorious Sovereign Queen Victoria—(loud cheers)—whose reign forms an epoch in the annals of the history of the world. From her enlightened, benevolent, merciful, and just rule, innumerable advantages, have accrued to the millions of human beings, whose good luck it is to be British subjects in various quarters of the globe. Under her benign rule we enjoy liberty, freedom of thought, speech, and writing, and above all, safety of life and property, and a complete immunity from any danger of oppression or injustice. Besides, we enjoy countless blessings which contribute to make life happy and useful to our fellow-creatures. (Hear, hear, and applause.) It will be almost impossible for me to enumerate innumerable beneficent changes that have been effected in various departments affecting her Majesty's subjects in all walks of life; but we have only to cast a glance around us, and it will not be difficult for us to see either by our mental or physical eye. The introduction of rails and steams; telegraphs and postal systems; irrigation and other works, which indicate the substantial progress that has been made by the various communities in India. The progress of moral, mental, social, and political education is marked and wonderful. During the last half-a-century India is transformed under the benign Government of her Majesty. I rejoice to see that even our community, which was regarded as a backward one in education, is aroused to the keen necessity of advancement in learning and science, and that satisfactory and hopeful progress is being made by them. It is a good sign of the times that they are coming to the front in almost all the good movements. Their praiseworthy efforts are being crowned with success. Although our Indian brethren were backward in education, nevertheless they are not lacking in loyalty to their Sovereign or wanting in several good qualities, requisite to constitute good and useful citizens. In other parts of the world we rejoice to find our Moslem brethren distinguished in learning, well-versed in the art of government, courageous, hardy, and resolute, realising the consequences of war and peace, and such people were to be found in abundance in Turkey, Persia, Afghanistan, and Egypt. It is noteworthy that the Mahomedans of Bombay, who are known to be loyal and true to their British Sovereign, occupy a pre-eminent position in the commercial world, and it is my fervent hope that the mercantile ascendency will be maintained with ever-increasing prosperity, enhanced by the wholesome influence of educational progress for many many years to come. Progress in every walk of life and grove of activity should be substantially encouraged by us, as it is said in the holy Koran, "Blessed are they that work hard to earn a livelihood." The precepts of our sacred religion are most beneficial and progressive in their character when we well understand the spirit of Islam and act according to its moral teachings, as will be evinced by the fact that our revered Prophet—may the peace of God be with him—expressed his gratification and gratitude to the Almighty for having made him the contemporary of Nosherwan the Just, who, as is well-known, was a non-Moslem, belonging to the Zoroastrian persuasion. How much more is it incumbent upon us to follow in his noble foot steps according to our humble mite, in obeying and loving our just, sympathetic, and benevolent Sovereign, under whose auspicious rule we enjoy so many privileges and blessings. Gentlemen, I will not encroach further on your indulgence and patience, as you are, I am sure, unanimous on the point that the object for which the meeting is convened is a most praiseworthy one. I am cognisant of the fact that I have not been able to do even bare justice to the subject, and I will not stand between you and the other speakers who will follow me, but at once call upon my friend, Mr. Mir Aun Ali, to propose the first resolution, which is for the adoption of the address. I now ask Mr. Mir Aun Ali to read the draft address.

Mr. Mir Aun Ali then read the address, which ran as follows:—

To Her Most Gracious Majesty Queen Victoria, by the Grace of God, Queen of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and Empress of India

May it please your Majesty,—We, your Majesty's true and loyal Mahomedan subjects, deeply grateful for the unwonted blessings enjoyed under your Majesty's glorious and benignant reign, crave permission to uplift our voices in heartfelt congratulations on the completion, through the wisdom and blessing of Divine Providence, of sixty years on the most illustrious throne in the world.

We pray from our inmost hearts that your Majesty's auspicious reign, which has been so fruitful of all good to your subjects, innumerable as the sands of the sea, may be prolonged for many years, and that your Majesty's name and memory may live for ever in the hearts of your people.

Under your Majesty's beneficient rule, your Mahomedan subjects have multiplied, and sixty millions of voices join in the congratulations which greet the completion of sixty years of your Majesty's glorious reign.

It has been a source of unbounded satisfaction to all your Majesty's Mahomedan subjects in India, that your Royal and Imperial Majesty maintained warm friendship with the great Mahomedan Powers, and especially with his Imperial Majesty the Sultan, whom Mahomedans regard with veneration as the first Sovereign in the Islamic world. It is with unfeigned gratitude that they have learned that your Majesty's illustrious and powerful Government have again declared their firm determination to cause the integrity of the great Mahomedan Empire of Turkey to be respected by the envious, and preserved as a bulwark of peace and concord in the East.

Your Majesty's Mahomedan subjects have proved on many glorious battlefields their loyalty and devotion. They will always deem it their highest honour, as it is their duty as loyal subjects, to uphold the rights of your Majesty's illustrious throne and the glorious dynasty.

It has been granted to us by the All-Wise to see restored by your Majesty the Empire of Akbar of glorious memory, under whose enlightened and impartial rule Mahomedans, Christians, and Hindus dwelt together in security and happiness. We, seeing in your Majesty an ideal ruler beseech the most high to prolong your reign for uncounted years, and to shower added blessings on the mother of his people.

Bending before your Majesty in loyal homage, your grateful Mahomedans beg to lay this tribute of their affection at the foot of the throne of England and of India.

In moving the adoption of the address, Mr. Mir Aun Ali said that it afforded him great pleasure to do so. It was about fifteen months back when they met in the very hall, but the occasion that had then got them together was a very painful one. They then adopted a letter of condolence to her Majesty, sympathising with her family in the sad bereavement caused by the death of Prince Henry of Battenburg. The message was then wired by their esteemed president, his Highness Aga Khan, to her Majesty. This present occasion was, however, one of rejoicing. They knew very well how her Majesty was anxious about their safety, and how anxiously she enquired about them through his Excellency Lord Sandhurst, their popular and indefatigable Governor, when the pestilence committed its ravages in this fine city. They must now give expressions to their grateful feelings towards her Majesty, and it was their bounden duty to send a congratulatory address on the occasion of her approaching completion of the sixtieth year of her glorious reign. The longest reign was not always a happy one, but her Majesty's reign was exceptionally fortunate. It marked an advancement in the literary as well as scientific world. Her Majesty's troops always came out triumphant everywhere in battlefields; every where the British flag was not only victorious, but it was welcome. The blessings of her Majesty's reign were countless. Her Majesty' reign could well be compared with that of King Louis XIV. of France. (Applause.) They should all pray to God to prolong her Majesty's beneficent rule. (Applause.) He would not detain them any longer as he was sure that it did not require a long speech to command the resolution to their acceptance. (Lord cheers.)

Mr. Amirudin Tyebji seconded the resolution. He spoke in feeling terms about the debt of gratitude they owed to her Majesty, and he was glad to see that the Mahomedans had come forward to show their loyalty towards their august Sovereign. (Lord cheers.)

Mr. Mirza Ali Mahomed Hoosain Khan, M.A., supported the resolution in a very eloquent and able speech in Hindustani, which was well received by the audience. He commenced by explaining to the audience the object of the meeting, which was called, he observed, to congratulate her Majesty the Queen on her Diamond Jubilee. He next read a translation of the address in Hindustani. Nobody, he observed, can gainsay the fact that her Majesty has been the most just of all "Rulers of India." What formerly used to be a dream of the novelist or the poet in picturing the ideal of a ruler we now see accomplished in the benign reign of her Most Gracious Majesty. The Prophet of Islam prided himself on being born in the reign of Nosherwan the Just. How much more should we pride ourselves on being born in the reign of such a just ruler as Queen Victoria. That Nosherwan was just is a matter of history, and is known only to those who read history, but the equity of this benefic Queen is like the sun at midday, shedding its lustre on all the world. He next observed that the word of God was the first or the great Nemos, and that a just Sovereign was the second Nemos. This he proved by quoting a verse from the Koran. Turning to general progress, he indulged in a panegyric on the dignity of learning. He next observed that at one time the Arabs had carried the palm of excellence from all the other nationalities of the world. They were the teachers of the world, but it was only too apparent that at the present day the Mahomedans had fallen from "the height of excellence to the abyss of misery." Education need not be through the medium of any one particular tongue. The universities had been founded these forty years, but although the other communities had taken full advantage of Western education and science, the Mahomedans had lagged behind. That her Majesty had a special regard for her Mahomedan subjects is amply proved by the fact of her Majesty learning Hindustani, at such an old age, under a Mahomedan tutor. Latterly the Mahomedans had come forward and distinguished themselves in commerce and in law, and the speaker sincerely hoped that they in the near future would be able to outshine their forefathers. It could be said without exaggeration that there was more material progress in the reign of her Majesty than in the reign of any other Indian ruler. In 1856 the telegraph wires were laid and railways begun. Two years later the universities were founded, and from 1861 to the present day a string of just and equitable laws were passed, which treat the rich and the poor alike. Mr. Mirza closed his eloquent discourse by a prayer in the words of the Persian poet:—

Padshah bargaest uz malak pur nur bad
Sajo takhtat ta sorat Akabat Mazmoor bad
Az Solomanshimat O Earuzh rooshi O Jamshid Jah
Tegh to bar harq doosaman nasir O Mansor bad.

Oh Sovereign, may your court be full of light by angels;
May your crown and throne be prosperous to the day of judgment.
Oh Sovereign, with the pomp of solemn, auspicious face and dignity of Jamshid—
May your sword be successful and victorious over your enemies.

Mr. Shaik Adum Joosafbhai further supported the resolution in Gujarati, and it was put to the vote and carried unanimously.

On the motion of Mr. Mahomed Hossein Hakim, it was resolved to authorise the president to send a telegraphic message to her Majesty on the day of the commemoration. A vote of thanks was passed to Mr. Haji Cassum Joosaf for allowing the use of his bungalow for the meeting.

Mr. Noormahomed Cassum Mitha proposed a vote of thanks to his Highness Aga Khan, to whom they were greatly indebted for the success of the meeting. His Highnesss had come down to Bombay at great sacrifice of personal convenience and comfort to preside at the meeting. They all knew the great and catholic charities of his Highness, who possessed noble qualities both of head and heart, and who always extended his right hand of fellowship and charity to the poor and the needy. His Highness has rendered yeoman service to the poor during the present famine and pestilence, and they all owed a deep and everlasting debt of gratitude to the Aga Khan, who was every inch a nobleman. It was their bounden duty to pass a hearty vote of thanks to his Highness, and he hoped that it would be carried by acclamation.

Haji Abdul Sattur seconded, and Haji Peer Mahomed Alarakhia supported, the motion for a vote of thanks which was carried by acclamation. The proceedings then terminated.

LOWER DAMAUN.

PROPITIATING THE DEITY.

Writing on Monday, our correspondent says :—The plague has slightly decreased during the last three days. The mortality, which is still heavy, is mostly among Mochis and Muhomedans. Considering that, unlike all other communities, the Mahomedans have not yet made a move from the highly infected localities they dwell in, Shet Sorabji, who has always been consulted by the Mahomedans in times of difficulty, of his own accord sent written suggestions to the jamats of Kharwa Vad, Kharewadi, Gauchi Wada, and Mora, asking them to fumigate and disinfect their quarters, to separate those attacked with plague from the healthy who should be removed to segregation camps, impressing upon them that at such time to adopt these measures in view of the high mortality prevailing among them, lest their delay and negligence might endanger the more the safety of others. The reply that Shet Sorabji received from them is to the effect that the Governor had not permitted them to erect segregation camps on a site selected by them ; and that, therefore, they had abandoned their intention in that behalf ; that, according to the tenets of the Koran they were praying all the time to God, and He will ward off the danger ; that they accepted with gratitude the kind advice of the Shet, but they were unable to follow it in the present crisis. It may be mentioned that the dead bodies of Mahomedans in time immemorial are buried in a large space allotted for the purpose in Kathiria, and that a fee was charged for each corpse buried, but on the purchase of the village of Kathiria, which is much greater than the town of Damaun, by the late Shet Manockji Cowasji Dadanawalla, the father of the present owner, Shet Sorabji, in 1874, Thomas Mourau, the Baron of Cumberjiwa, this fee, along with several others, payable by the Machis of Kathiria, was given up.

It is customary in all places where Hindus form a great portion of the population, when any epidemic breaks out to propitiate the deity presiding over the disease, Kalika, Bhowani or Bhairav, and offer a goat, a fowl, cooked food, and meat and liquor and in a body of a hundred or more to take the offerings, shouting and yelling to the next village, the people whereof, also in a large number, accept the trust and convey it in a similar manner to the next village, and in this manner the offerings are passed from one village to another for a distance of 50 or 100 miles until the course terminates in a jungle or forest, where the offerings find their resting place. This is called carrying "Ootar" (removing the calamity or evil). About a week ago a mochan (wife of a shoemaker), possessed and at the same time inspired with the "Deity of Disease," directed the people how to get rid of the pestilence. In accordance with her directions, subscriptions, which amounted to some hundreds of rupees, were raised by all classes of Hindus, and preparations on an unprecedented scale made to carry the Ootar from Lower Damaun. At about 9 a.m. yesterday a procession was formed, headed by a dozen native musicians, who were followed by a closed wooden car, wherein were placed a gold and a silver image, rich clothes worn by Hindu women, and all articles of female decoration, dragged by two men with ropes, and followed by people who carried two goats, one sheep, a dozen fowls, pots of liquor, cooked khichri, and various other articles. These were followed by a concourse of over two thousand five hundred people of all classes of Hindus, shouting and yelling to the utmost of their power, each man carrying with him some sort of handgun, stick or bamboo. Among the crowd followed the usual retinue, the appearance of one Raghunath Moorar, a Lohana stall-holder in the market, who has in various ways shown a philanthropic spirit in the present crisis, and who, being the promoter of the procession, was profusely garlanded.

The procession paraded through all the principal streets of the city, the people crying at the top of their voices, "Mataki jai" (victory to the mother, goddess). The procession then taking its way on the main road proceeded out of the city of Lower Damaun, and, when it arrived at Bhesol, a Portuguse custom post, a few yards from Kunta, the Collector made a moment's halt to enable the people lagging behind to join and make one mass of crowd. The concourse coming near the frontier witnessed that over a hundred frontier sepoys, with drawn swords, were stationed in two rows to prevent their entrance. This did not, however, daunt the courage of the leaders, most of whom, in order to sustain their energy and courage for the work undertaken by them, had freely used strong drink, and they began to push forward, whereupon the British jamedar stepped forward and asked the leaders what they wanted. A machi (fisherman), more courageous than others, took upon himself the task of the spokesman, and answered : "We will carry the Ootar." The jamedar, who seemed to possess great presence of mind and praiseworthy tact, instead of giving a rebuff to the rude spokesman and thereby set up the infuriated mob in opposition, in mild tone said : "Yes, according to Hindu custom, the Ootar must be carried. We will take it and carry it further. How many men do you want to take it ?" It seems the authorities of the frontier had received due intimation of the great mob they would have to face and had taken all possible precautions to prevent the cordon being crossed with impunity. They had kept about a hundred villagers ready assembled to take the "Ootar" and carry it further, and accordingly called the villagers and asked the leaders to hand the "Ootar" with all its paraphernalia to the villagers. The leaders had no option but to accede to the wishes of the jemadar, which were consonant with the customs of "Ootar." The whole of the mob of 2,500 persons then reversed their course, and wended its way back to Damaun, and thus an important event passed without a drop of blood being shed, or a limb broken, solely owing to the pluck and presence of mind of the jemadar, for the mob, goaded to desperation by religious frenzy and the innumerable hardships they have endured, was inclined towards mischief.

The mob, probably, smarting under a sense of disappointment at being unable to cross the cordon with such a large number of persons each armed with a stick, directed their thoughts to the sufferings they have been put to by the Governor's cutting off communication between Lower and Upper Damaun. Instead of each man returning home, they in a body wended their course towards the beach. On the way they stopped near the mansion of Shet Sorabji, and asked his advice as to what steps should be taken to restore peremptory connection between Lower and Upper Damaun as the hardships they had borne in consequence thereof were unbearable and intolerable. They were a powerful number and in a position to demand immediate redress, and a word of encouragement from the Shet would have served as a spark to ignite a magazine of combustibles. But Shet Sorabji, standing on his verandah, addressed the mob, assuring them that the way to obtain redress from the rulers was not to defy them. The grievances must be courteously submitted to the rulers, and if redress could not be obtained from them, their superiors must be approached, and almost to a certainty the necessary redress will be obtained. That upon the people's telegram the Goa authorities sent a steamer laden with provisions for which a great want has been felt for some time. That also upon the people's second telegram the Queen Dowager Donna Maria Pia, had sent a sum of Rs. 2,500 towards the relief of the suffering people, and if they waited with patience everything that they desire and are justly entitled to will be obtained. This advice coming from the benefactor of the people had its due and immediate effect on the mob, who gave up all ideas of defying the Government, and, after offering sugar cakes to Shet Sorabji and his friends and others, returned peaceably to their homes.

The Governor has sent a letter to Shet Sorabji, informing him that the Collector of Surat had made a concession in respect of the cordon, namely, that any Portuguese subject desiring to cross the frontier will be allowed to do so on his first obtaining a pass from him (the Governor) and sending it to the Mamletdar of Pardi and obtaining his pass. This is the second concession the Collector has been pleased to make, the first being the appointment of Messrs. Nusserwanji Jiwaji and Maneklal Javer-bhai to bring to Lower Damaun people's goods from the railway station.

The Governor of Damaun has sent the sum Rs. 100 out of private subscriptions to the vicar of Lower Damaun to be distributed among the mendicants. His Excellency has also ordered at the cost of the Government free distribution of paddy among the poor and suffering people which takes place at the police office for the last three days.

MEDICAL INSPECTION AT SANTA CRUZ.

A FEW SUGGESTIONS.

The Soobodh Patrika writes as follows :—The newly instituted inspection of Railway passengers at Santa Cruz is on the whole proceeding in a fairly satisfactory manner. The Assistant Surgeons in charge, Drs. Pavri and Satpute, both seem quite reasonable men and treat people with all courtesy and consideration ; but apparently the subordinate staff is not all drawn from the proper class of men. Some of these lower men are wanting in manners, and even worse at times. Subordinates must be vigorously controlled on occasions like these. A good deal of the odium with which the populace looks upon well meant measures is due to the spirit which these men carry into the performance of their tasks. The Plague Committee might also supply these inspecting officers with forms of certificate such as those which the coroner gives when necessary, certifying to the fact of detention. During the short time that the Santa Cruz inspection has been in force there has been occasion for the detention in doubtful cases of some public or private servants under observation. When they revert to duty for the first time after this detention of a day or so the master or superior would certainly expect a certificate specifying the period of detention ; and these certificates ought to be granted freely and as a matter of course. At present they seem to be looked upon as a favour to which the detained persons are not deemed entitled. The supply of forms by the Plague Committee would doubless facilitate matters. And then what about the food arrangements of people who are detained for observation. At present there are none except such as the parties may make for themselves or the Doctor may make for them—again as a matter of favour and perhaps at his own cost at times. This is a serious drawback. A man supposed or suspected to be suffering from plague must not be allowed to go about ; and if there is no body else handy is he to starve or depend upon the Doctor's charity for the sheerest requisites of life ? Only the other day a whole Parsee family, including husband, wife and children, coming from Surat or thereabout, was detained under observation. The doctor helped the family to some extent ; and we believe the man also had to help himself by going round the bazar. And this when it was on account of his fever that the family was detained. The need for food arrangements in these cases is urgent, and as the Plague Committee is expected to visit Santa Cruz to-day we trust the matter will have been brought to their notice with immediate results.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "BOMBAY GAZETTE."

SIR,—Your correspondent, "One Who Knows," has pointed out that periodical ticket-holders are not exempted from the medical examination at the Coorla station. My experience of the inspection conducted at Santa Cruz, on the B. B. & C. I. Railway line, shows that the spirit of Government orders on the subject, which lay down that such passengers would be ordinarily exempted from medical examination, is clearly overlooked. In that notice issued by the Railway Company require all passengers including pass-holders to alight at the Santa Cruz station for the purpose of being examined. This, I submit, goes much beyond the requirements of the Government notification and gives discretionary powers to the subordinate staff which they are most unfitted to exercise. I have nothing to urge against Drs. Pavri and Satpute, in medical charge of this station. Their uniform courtesy to all alike in the performance of what is after all an unpleasant duty is fully appreciated by the public. This much, however, cannot be said of some of the hands working under them. For instance, the other day a whole batch of 3rd class pass-holders were made to get out of the carriage. The sight of a body of men, many of whom looked quite as healthy and respectable as those in the 2nd class compartment, dragged out on the platform was enough to cause general irritation, and the proceeding, to my mind, savoured of pure caprice. A pass-holder, as matter what compartment in the train he occupies, is a business man of the city who spends the nights in the suburbs and hardly dreams of travelling with plague symptoms on. If needless annoyance of this kind does not cease I am afraid the influx into the city from the suburbs, which it is well should be deferred yet a while, will receive an impetus. What with many houses in the city condemned as "U. H." the overcrowding in the remaining habitable houses before the plague is quite stamped out is a dreadful prospect, and I hope the inspecting authorities at the railway stations will act with circumspection and tact in discharging their functions.—Yours, &c.,

WHEN DID THE PLAGUE BEGIN ?

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "BOMBAY GAZETTE."

SIR,—On referring to the report of the Standing Committee of the 24th September 1896, when Dr. Viegas first broached the subject of the plague, Mr. Ibrahim Rahimtulla is reported to have said that the matter was reported to him about twenty days ago ; this fixes the date of his information as the 4th of September. Later on, in the proceedings of the Standing Committee of the same day, the Health Officer is reported to have said that "Mr. Ibrahim Rahimtulla had drawn his attention to the occurrence of cases which appeared to be in some respects of a bubonic character. Dr. Ismail Jan Mahomed had before that called his attention to the peculiar character of certain cases which came under his notice." I myself, Health Officer about these cases in the middle of August, only four days after I had seen two or three such cases ; this brings up the date to about the 10th August. But I have strong reasons to believe that the plague commensed a fortnight or a little earlier than that, for when I went to see my first case, a Moolani, in a certain firm at French Street, Mandvie, I found that there were not so many men at work in the firm as before, and on inquiring the cause of this, I was informed that a peculiar disease had attacked the men of the several firms of Moolanis at Mandvie, and that within the last fortnight many died and others had left Bombay.

This fixes the early date of the beginning of the plague as the latter part of July 1896.—Yours, &c.,

GOA NEWS.

(FROM A CORRESPONDENT.)

GOA, APRIL 22.

TELEGRAPHIC comunication has been received by the Government Council from the Minister in Lisbon accepting the resignation of the popular Administrator of Forests, Mr. Francisco Homem de Souza Napoles. Mr. Napoles has been instructed to proceed immediately to Mozambique and to assume the post of the Inspector of Government Depots at Zambesi which he occupied previous to his coming out to Goa. Mr. Napoles was a great friend of the natives, and was in return highly esteemed and respected by them. It appears he made certain recommendations to the Government Council regarding the administration of the Forest Department, which if not acceded to by Government he preferred to give up the post of the Administrator of Forests. The Government Council, however, in placing Mr. Napoles' resignation before the Minister are reported to have made no mention of that gentleman's recommendations. Mr. Napoles will be shortly leaving for Africa, but it is believed that he will return to Goa again. The Principal Medical Officer also proceeds to Portugal shortly. The Government Council has refused sanction to prosecute Mr. Pegado, the Administrator of Ponda. With the Archbishop and Colonel Joao de Mello Sampaio at the head of affairs in Goa nothing better could be expected. We had a shower of rain on Sunday last, since when the weather has been very cloudy, and it looks as if it will rain before the 1st proximo. The Ranes are again showing signs of restlessness. On the 10th instant two well-to-do Hindus of Usgao were killed by them. One lieutenant, two corporals, and a number of soldiers are reported to have been killed by the Ranas in the district of Ponda. It is said that the handing over of the W. I. P. Railway to the S. M. Railway Company will take place in July next, and that the agreement has already been signed in Lisbon.

BOMBAY MILL OWNERS' ASSOCIATION.

A SPECIAL general meeting of the Bombay Mill-owners Association was held last evening in Graham's Buildings to consider the question of resuming monthly instead of daily payment of wages to the mill-hands. Mr. George Cotton presided and there were present :—The Hon'ble N. N. Wadia, C. I. E. (Deputy Chairman), Messrs. Damoder Tapidas, M. Mahomed Fakirs, S. A. Nathan, M. N. Wardia, Dorabjee J. Tata, Sassoon J. David, K. R. Cama, P. Chrystal, S. M. Moses, Runchordas Narotumdas, D. Gostling, Lukhmidass Khimjee, Jamsetjee Wadia, Jamsetjee Hirajee, Dorabjee C. Shroff, Goolam Hossein Allana, Munjee, Mooraj, Khatau Makanjee, Nensell Spencer, S. Patuck, Govindjee Thakersee Mooljee, Jeejeebhoy Petit, C. Myers, J. Bradbury, Dwarkadass Dhurrumsey, Toolsidas N. Parekh, Purshotom Naranjee, Jevasjee Khrishna Parulker, Chhanjanlal Murlidhar, Pranjeevandas Narandas, Rangindas Bhookhardas, B. Bhimrao, Atmaram Balchrishna, Dinshaw P. Sethna, K. K. Khote, J. F. Fernandez, S. G. Khote, Cursondas Lakhmidas, and Dwarkadas Schinjee.

In opening the proceedings the Chairman explained at great length the signal disadvantages of the practice which was now prevalant amongst them of making daily payment of wages to the mill-hands. He said that like most of them he was of opinion that it was now time to consider the question, and it required no argument on his part to convince any member of the association that it was not at all desirable to continue to work on that short-sighted system. Not only were the millowners doing harm to themselves by that practice, but they were also interfering very considerably with the chance of successfully competing in China with Japan. The latter country they were all sure was sending large quantities of yarn to China. The present practice of daily payment demoralised their hands. The labourers got an increased rate of pay, lately which enabled them to work for a day or so, and then idle away a couple of days. The sooner they returned to the normal condition the better for the mill-owners themselves and also for the labourers. Unless the mills made a profit they could not give such increased rate of wages. He was satisfied that a very large percentage of the wages they were daily paying to the mill-hands did not find its way into the pockets of the mill-hands, but the jobbers were benefitted by it, and it was to his interest to see that the present practice was continued. The only question for them to consider was whether this was the time to resume the payment of wages monthly. So far as he could ascertain he found that most of the mills had 75 or 80 per cent. of the hands working and many of them would obtain even more if the hands were willing to settle down. Speaking of his own mills Mr. Cotton remarked that out of the total number of 4,800 hands nearly four thousand were working. These figures only indicated the number of men labourers without including women or half-time hands. Those managers who visited their mills in the morning must have noticed that about 15 to 20 per cent. of the mill-hands are wandering about without doing any work in the hope of getting more wages from the mills. With a view to remove these evils he would submit a resolution for the consideration of the meeting, that in resuming the monthly payment he admitted they must be careful not to cause any unnecessary hardship to the mill-hands, who were still returning to Bombay in large numbers. The resolution he was going to move had been prepared by the Hon. Mr. Wadia after a very careful consideration. It was also provided that those mill-hands who had returned and those who were returning did not undergo the risk of placing themselves in the hands of Marwaris. The resolution runs as follows :

"That on and after 1st May 1897 the payment of daily wages to mill-hands be discontinued, and that payments be made to them monthly or fortnightly in accordance with the rules approved of by the Association." That to prevent any hardship that might result from the stoppages of the payment of wages daily bonuses on the following scale be paid until 15th July next, the bonus scale being—Hands in blow room 3 annas per day, card tenters 2 annas per day, grinders 3 annas per day, drawers 3 annas per day, slubbers 4 annas per day, intermediates 4 annas per day, rovers 3 annas per day, doffers 1 anna per day, mule spinners 4 annas per day, mule piecers 4 annas per day, mule creelers 1 anna per day, ring side boys 2 annas per day, spare piecers 1 anna per day, doffers 1 anna per day, doff reelers 2 annas per day, winders 4 annas per day, and baling men 1 anna per day.

Mr. Cotton further said that he sincerely trusted they would come to some definite conclusion that evening, satisfactory to the very large interest they represented and satisfactory to the mill-hands as well, who, he knew, were anxious to settle down. What prevented them from doing so was uncertainty as to the scale of payment, brought about by the present wrong system of daily payment. He had mentioned the date of commencing monthly payment to be 1st of May, but he would be very glad to be guided by the views of others. The other day a whole batch of 3rd class pass-holders were made to get out of the carriage. The sight of a body of men, many of whom looked quite as healthy and respectable as those in the 2nd class compartment, dragged out on the platform was enough to cause general irritation, and the proceeding, to my mind, savoured of pure caprice. A pass-holder, as matter what compartment in the train he occupies, is a business man of the city who spends the nights in the suburbs and hardly dreams of travelling with plague symptoms on. If needless annoyance of this kind does not cease I am afraid the influx into the city from the suburbs, which it is well should be deferred yet a while, will receive an impetus. What with many houses in the city condemned as "U. H." the overcrowding in the remaining habitable houses before the plague is quite stamped out is a dreadful prospect, and I hope the inspecting authorities at the railway stations will act with circumspection and tact in discharging their functions.—Yours, &c.,

Mr. Jamsetji Wadia next suggested that the date of resuming the monthly payment should be the 15th of May instead of 1st.

Mr. Govind Thakersi Mulji addressed the meeting in Guzerati, remarking that on two previous occasions the millowners met together, but nothing came out of it as only 10 or 15 millowners acted according to the resolution. The others did not mind it, and the resolution fell hardly any effect. On this occasion also he feared the resolution might be passed, but few would act according to it. He therefore suggested that a promise should be taken from the members present, and those who did not keep the promise should be made liable to a penalty.

The chairman said that he could understand the substance of what Mr. Govindji said, but they must give credit to every one who made a promise that he would fulfill it. They had 66 mills in Bombay, and only if 45 were of opinion that they should stick to the resolution, he for his own part did not care whether Mr. Govindji or some other millowners did or did not join them.

Mr. Dwarkadas Dharamsi remarked that the association should ascertain the number of mill-hands in Bombay before passing such a resolution.

The Chairman remarked that Mr. Dwarkadas not being in Bombay recently he did not know that a very large number of labour class had come to Bombay and many more were coming by the coasting steamers. He would be glad to put the figures at Mr. Dwarkadas' disposal.

Mr. G. Wadia : If they are not we shall use them as such.

Mr. D. Gostling desired to address the meeting.

The Chairman : I can't allow you ; you are not a member.

Mr. Gostling : I am a director of a mill, which is a member of the Association.

The Chairman ruled that even as such he could not address the meeting.

The Hon. Mr. N. N. Wadia then submitted some figures which he had collected after some trouble. He said in Bombay there were 69 mills with 21,86,323 spindles and 21,335 looms employing in the aggregate 78,435 hands. Of these some 10,000 it was estimated employed for whom had been in Bombay. Leaving some 52,000 hands in the textile branches on the various spindles and carding machines. It was estimated that out of these 52,000 some 35,000 had returned and about one-third of the number of spindles required hands. Upon the return of these men hinges the whole thing. He urged three points for the consideration of the meeting ; the first was the housing of the hands. Many buildings were declared unfit for habitation and destroyed. For five or six weeks they could sleep in open air but then the monsoon sets in and they would have had to secure some means of housing them. Mr. Wadia had a model constructed in the compound of the Petit Mills, and it was open to any millowner who chose to have a look at it. It cost Rs. 250, and the huts could be put up at the shortest notice. The other point he urged was that they should encourage their hands and persuade them to get innoculated, and thus drive away their fears. The third point was to put into effect the scheme of Mr. Jamsetji Tata for importation of labour from the North-West Provinces. If every mill-owner imported twenty families they would in course of time have skilled labour in Bombay.

On a division it was found that only 27 mills were willing to accept the resolution and the meeting was adjourned for a fortnight to further consider the question.

with regard to the question of Provincial contentions, the Chairman asked : Do you think there may possibly be some reason for one province not having so much of its revenue given to it as another ?—Sir James Westland says there are some backward provinces which have not the same revenue as the older and richer provinces, and they must all be brought into line. What we say is that each province must depend upon its own revenue.

Sir James Peile : But in that case the different provinces would not have an equal chance of prospering ?—We say that where a province has not a sufficient revenue it will be stimulated to get a larger and larger expenditure.

The Chairman : You do not see any difficulty or objection to laying down a cast-iron rule for the whole of India, rich and poor, thriving and back ward provinces alike ?—India is, of course, a progressive country, and each province requires a good deal of expenditure for purposes of public utility. Each province is jealous of the other provinces. Why should they take more revenue from us and give it to somebody else ?

Then you see no objection to laying down a cast-iron rule ?—No.

It has been stated to us that one of the reasons for decentralisation was the difficulty of appling general rules to what is really a continent. You are advocating one rule throughout the whole country ?—Certainly it would be more equitable.

Minute descriptions of every branch of administration in India have been laid before us. Have you, or your Association, any comments to offer on the administration of these branches ?—I have no remarks.

May we assume that you have no objection to advance against the principles or details of administration under the several heads ?—I am not in a position to criticise because I am a non- official and do not know the exact working of the machinery and whether the expenditure is justified or not.

Then there are no blots or defects which are evident to you from the outside and to which you would wish to call attention ?—I am not in a position to criticise.

Mr. Buchanan: So far as you know there is no general dissatisfaction with them ?—There is general dissatisfaction in a way in different part of the country. Opinions have been expressed, but have not been formulated and fixed in such a way as to enable me to offer criticism here. Take, for instance, the Police Department or the Law Courts.

The Chairman: But if it has not been represented to you in a form that you can represent to us, the only conclusion is that the Indian public has no grievance that can be formulated ? We should be obliged to come to the conclusion that Indian opinion has not offered any very formal criticism upon these branches of administration. Otherwise you would no doubt be able to tell us what that criticism was ? —I am only speaking so far as my personal knowledge goes.

Coming to the question of the progress of expenditure, witness urged that in the ten years, 1885-90—1894-95, the Indian financial position showed a deterioration or deficit amounting to Rx. 59,406,943 This deterioration necessitating additional taxation he attributed to the enormous growth of military expenditure in the first instance, and secondly, to considerable increase in civil expenditure. His Association was of opinion that increased military expenditure is primarily responible for the enhanced assessed position of Indian finance during the periond in question.

Witness referred to the fact that Sir Auckland Colvin and Mr. Ilbert protested against the increase of the Army in 1885-86.

The Chairman : Was the Government of India in general was a party to that measure ?—I do not know. I suppose you would infer from the two members of Council protesting that the remainder of the members concurred ?—It may be that other members of tes Government of India remained quiet in obedience to the orders of the Secretary of State.

Sir Donald Stewart : Are you aware that the Governor General and the majority of Council went against that increase of the Army to which Sir Auckland Colvin and Mr. Ilbert objected in the first instance ?—I don't know.

Are you aware that the Government of India subsequently admitted that under different circumstances ?—I don't know.

The Chairman : Therefore we have it now that the Government of India, possibly reluctantly, but looking to all the circumstances of the case, were actually parties to that increase ?

Sir Donald Stewart : Very reluctantly.

In further examination, witness quoted a memorial by his Association protesting against outlay on frontier railways, and urged that it was expedient to contract for payment in silver only so far as possible on all liabilities which the Government may have hereafter to incur. A very large saving might be effected by the future extensive employment of natives in posts which are now filled by highly-paid Europeans. It was the faulty system of administration which was at the root of the financial embarrassments, and therefore fundamental changes should be made in that system, especially the gradual substitution on a large scale of native for European agency, without which it would be vain to indulge in the hope that any permanent relief could be afforded to the Indian Treasury.

The Chairman : That rather points to the assumption that at that time your Association was able to point out certain defects of administration which from your point of view you do not feel in a position to formulate. What had they in their mind when they spoke of "faulty system of administration" being at the root of financial embarrassment ?—The Association considered that the system was faulty, inasmuch as a very expensive agency was employed, and also that all burdens arose from that.

The Chairman : The remedy then is the substitution of a cheaper form of labour ? But this hardly seems to support such a general charge as "faulty system of administration?—That is the view the Association take—that the system was faulty in this respect that it was carried on by too expensive agency.

And, therefore, when the Association speaks of a "faulty system of administration," it is not at variance with what I think we have understood from you, that you have no charges to bring against the system itself ?—With regard to the system I have pointed out what are the defects.

I don't think you pointed them out, did you ?—Yes, particularly in the financial branch.

Perhaps you would not mind mentioning them again. I don't remember your bringing before us any substantial points. Possibly it has escaped my recollection ?—There is the financial difficulty of check and control : that is faulty system of administration.

What was the actual defect ?—Well, if the Finance Minister is not supported, and is not able to control one thing and another, of course expenditure increases and all that sort of thing, you see.

You quote Sir David Barbour and Sir Auckland Colvin on that point, but is not Lord Cromer entitled to equal weight. Neither he nor the ex Viceroys, Lords Ripon, Northbrook, and Lansdowne agree with Sir Auckland Colvin. Is it fair to omit all reference to their evidence ?—They had not the same experience as Sir Auckland Colvin and Sir David Barbour. The forward policy began later.

But Lord Lansdowne agreed with Lord Northbrook ?—Yes, in Indian public opinion he is a party to this growth of expenditure.

Sir James Peile : Sir James Westland agrees with Lord Cromer, so you have two Finance Ministers against two ?

The Chairman : What I wished to point out was that it does not do to rely too implicitly upon the evidence of a Finance Minister who takes one view and ignore entirely the evidence of another Minister that tends in the other direction ?—I said I agreed generally with what Sir David Barbour and Sir Auckland Colvin said, not particularly.

Have you formed any idea how the position of the Finance Minister could be strengthened ?—With an economic Viceroy the position is very much strengthened. It all depends upon the selection of the Minister. But apart from that, however economic a Finance Minister may be, and however well supported, it would be advisable to allow the non-official element to vote and divide on the Budget.

Do you mean that sufficient care in the selection of the Finance Minister has not been taken ?—There are Finance Ministers and Finance Ministers.

But do you think sufficient care has not been taken ?—I am not in a position to reply.

It is a question that cannot be replied to. Clearly it must be the interest of the Viceroy and the Indian Government to choose the best man they can. If the only remedy to be suggested is more care in choosing the Financial Member it is an impracticable remedy, for you have no reason for supposing that the utmost care has not been taken up to the present ? —I said that more will depend upon the concession to non-official members of Council.

Continuing witness urged that the Financial member should be appointed from home—an independent public man rather than a man who was already in the permanent Civil Service of India.

Mr. Courtney : It may be that the conditions of tenure are not sufficiently satisfactory to induce persons to accept the appointment from home. Would you be prepared to accept the cost of improving the conditions ?—The cost would be nothing as compared with the saving debt has risen of millions of money which such a Finance Minister might make.

The Chairman remarked that it was rather a broad assumption—that an ignorant, however able, statesman would be able to effect an economy of millions.

With regard to the debt services witness said that the rupee borrowings have increased Rx. 11,000,000, while the sterling debt has risen from £89,271 000 £114,000,000 sterling, or nearly 70 per cent. It should be remembered that every increase in sterling debt adds correspondingly to the annual interest charges. Sterling loans for public works of an unproductive character such as military railways were most objectionable.

The Chairman : Of course you are aware that the subject of borrowing in India or England has been discussed, perhaps, more in the India Office than any other subject, and the form which the borrowing has taken has been one that represents the mature calculations of at all events, very high authorities on Indian finance ?—Yes.

Do you mean to imply that they have been wrong in borrowing in England ?—No, but Indian opinion generally is that so far as peaceable money should be borrowed in India.

The conclusion to which the very best authorities have come is that had they borrowed in India in all probability, the charge would have been higher. I put that point to you, bearing in mind at the same time that the fall in exchange has contributed to make the charge heavier than it appeared likely to be when the loan was contracted. Has your Association come to any distinct opinion that the course which has been followed has been more expesive to India than if they had tried to borrow in India ?—I have no knowledge how the conclusion is obtained that borrowing in rupees will cost eventually more than borrowing in sterling.

If you have not gone into it—it is a question to which high authorities have given very great consideration—it is rather a difficult matter for you to express a distinct opinion upon it—With all due deference to these high authorities I may say this : we do not know, except on your Lordship's word, that high authorities have come to that conclusion.

But if your Association has gone into this question they would be able to form an opinion as to whether first of all there was capital in India available for loan to the Government at the rates at which the Government borrows, and, next, whether the rate would have been lower than in England. These are points on which Indian opinion should be able to judge ?—If such statements were put before the Association we might then from an opinion one way or the other.

But without their being put before you, if the Association comes forward as a critic of the administration ought they not to have gone into the question and formed an opinion themselves, which they are perfectly competent to do, as to whether the borrowing of these large sums could be effected more cheaply in India ?—The question, as your Lordship has said, whether there is sufficient capital in India is a question which can be verified by independent investigation.

But who are more capable of doing this than an Association which exist almost entirely for observing and criticising the acts of the Indian Government ?—Exactly, but all Associtions do not go minutely into some of these larger questions.

But until they have done so they are hardly in a position to criticise very forcibly the acts of the Government ?—We can form a common-sense opinion that it is better to borrow in rupees than in sterling.

Mr. Courtney : But surely that is not a final consideration. It would be much cheaper for instance if we had contracted a national debt in rupees although that is not the currency of this country ?—That depends on what the Finance Minister thinks.

In further examination witness complained that the Annual Revenue and Finance Accounts gave no particulars of the Army charge under miscellaneous services. Here a lump sum was put down from year to year averaging about half a million sterling. That such a large sum should be spent for which no detailed figures could be obtained is much to be regretted from a public point of view.

The Chairman : The Gazette of India, I suppose, is a public document ?—Yes. I find in the supplement to the Gazette the items of these miscellaneous services set out in great detail. This hardly seems to justify your statement ?—I have been urging in my evidence that it is a most extraordinary thing that the Finance and Revenue Accounts give no particulars. They are the accounts to which the general public go to get their information.

But as both, who had studied the finances of India should, we might fairly expect, refer to such a very accessible document ?—Yes, but I must maintain that the Finance and Revenue account is a most important document, and what is there to prevent it being put in the Finance and Revenue accounts.

But as you wanted to point out, the fact of a document so very easily obtained as the Gazette of India, very particular details are given of these items to which you refer ?—That is so.

With regard to military works and special defences witness urged that the cost of these works, which are supposed to last for more than a generation, is all charged to revenue. The present population of taxpayers bear the burden when both sound finance and equity demand that it be spread over at least 25 or 30 years.

The Chairman : Therefore your plea would be that you would increase the borrowing for this purpose, though I must remind you that you have been speaking of the difficulties of borrowing ?—I am merely saying that it should be spread over a number of years.

That is borrowing ?—To charge for one year the whole cost of the military works is a little hard on the present generation of taxpayers. So far as this particular work goes it would be far better to spread it over a number of years.

Then you would propose to execute in, say, 30 years work which the Government of India has executed in a few years ?—If the revenue could not afford it, and it is unavoidable to borrow loans, there is nothing to prevent it, but so far as the revenue has to bear the burden without further taxation if the amount is spread over some years then it would be all right.

In further examination witness complained that the charges under the head of volunteers shows a steady increase. As Indians were now accepted it appeared that European Volunteers were maintained principally for the purpose of British supremacy. This charge should, therefore in great part be borne by the British Treasury. He urged that whereas the cost of a European soldier in England was Rs. 891 in Austria it was only Rs. 500, in France Rs. 698, in Germany Rs. 730, in Russia Rs. 800, and in Japan Rs. 640. He complained that the representations of his Association, made on the 12th March, 1894, on the occasion of the imposition of import duties, were slightly referred to by the Financial Member, as almost all representations, however cogent, emanating from representative bodies, including the Congress, were generally treated by the Government.

The Commission then adjourned till Thursday.

(To be concluded.)

THE Gazette gives notice that preparations are now being made for the distribution of prize-money awarded for the following captures by the Barossa, cruiser, Commander J. Startin :—Dhow Bahati and six slaves, captured May 6, 1896 ; canoe, name unknown, and three slaves, captured May 8, 1896 ; dhow, name unknown, and seven slaves, captured May 13, 1896 ; dhow Feres, and two slavers, captured May 22, 1896. The Gazette also gives notice that the distribution of prize-money for the dhow Semhi and one slave, captured by the Widgeon, gunboat, on April 8, 1896, will commence on Friday, April 9, in the prize branch of the department of the Accountant-General of the Navy, Admiralty, Spring Gardens, S.W.

THE Institution of Naval Architects opened its annual meeting on April 7 at the rooms of the Society of Arts. Lord Hopetoun, the president, occupied the chair, and delivered an address, in which he gave some interesting statistics of the extent of naval construction—both of warships and of merchant vessels—during the past year and of the future outlook. Papers were read by Mr. A. J. Durston, engineer-in-chief of the Navy, on "The Recent Trials of the Powerful and the Terrible," and by Rear-Admiral Fitz Gerald on "Water-tube Boilers in Warships," which were followed by a long discussion on the relative merits of water-tube and cylindrical boilers. After transacting some other business

MILITARY AND NAVAL NOTES.

THE plans for the new naval barracks have been received at Portsmouth, and their construction will be commenced next month. A number of buildings, including the Anglesea Barracks and the Volunteer Drill Hall, will be cleared away for the purpose, and the barracks, which are to consist of eight separate blocks in parallel lines, will, when completed, afford accommodation for nearly 5,000 men. Some sixty acres are to be acquired in all, and in addition to the new buildings, which will include quarters for unmarried officers, a mess-room canteens, and a recreation hall, there will be a commodious drill ground. In addition to communication with the dockyard at the end of the Anglesea Road, there will be exits from the barracks through the Lion Gate and near what is now the drill hall, while Ancher Gate House is, it is said, to be the official residence of the captain of the barracks. The grounds, however, of Holy Trinity Church and the vicarage are not to be included in the scheme. No date is yet fixed for the completion of the work, but there can be no doubt that the sooner they are finished the better, as in spite of the rumours as to a scarcity of room in the naval depot, the present overcrowding in the hulks which now form that establishment is frequently under the existing conditions little short of a scandal.

The Report of the Inspector-General of Recruiting for last year has been issued. It shows that the number of men who joined the army in 1896 was 28,832, or 1,051 less than in 1895; 1,033 joining for twelve years with the colours, 25,028 for seven years with the colours and five in the Reserve, and 1,831 for three years with the colours and nine in the Reserve. The established strength of the army was fully maintained throughout the year, and on the first day of 1897 there were 1,973 non-commissioned officers and men in excess of the establishment. The number of men who were medically inspected for enlistment was 54,574, and of these 23,032 were rejected for various ailments or want of physical development, the percentage of rejections, 20·1, being practically the same as in the previous four years. The strength of the first-class Army Reserve at the beginning of the year was 78,190, and of the Militia 107,878, or 14,731 below the establishment. The number of Militia recruits raised last year was 35,412, 26,654 in England, 3,371 in Scotland, and 5,387 in Ireland. The Militia Reserve numbers 30,374, or 34 above establishment. The totals of the various military Services on January 1 are given as follows, those of the Regular Army, Militia, and Yeomanry being exclusive of officers:—Regular Army and First-Class Reserve, 220,331; Militia, 107,878; Yeomanry, 9,400; Volunteers, 236,055; general total, 643,674, or higher than in any year since 1887, except 1895, when the total was 645,396 that being the year in which the Army Reserve reached its highest point of 82,804.

M. Emile Duboc has just given the readers of the Yacht a summary, with comments, of our Navy Estimates. Like most Frenchmen he is amazed at the extent of our naval defences and the energy we display. The vast number of ships we have in hand arouses his admiration, and he draws attention to the fact that concurrently with the building of ships, we are increasing dock accomodation, erecting new establishments, dredging ports, adding new facilities for coaling ships, raising huge cranes, and carrying on a great deal of other like necessary work, not in England only, but at all the strategic points visited by our Fleet. He draws special attention, with marked approval, to our plan of commissioning new ships, and regrets that Admiral Besnard should have made a statement seeming to imply that he was content to leave such vessels in the second category of the French Reserve. The gigantic work we have undertaken has been pursued, he says, with method and energy already crowned with success, and to which Frenchmen should render due homage. Our example, he continues, should incite them to abandon the naval inaction and stagnation into which France has been suffered to fall, for a navy, as he truly says, which does not advance, recedes, and there can be no relaxation of effort while all rival powers are augmenting their naval forces as if with the prescience that a sea theatre will be shaped. It is deplorable, therefore, he concludes, to find the Minister himself declaring that France has nothing, or almost nothing, building on the stocks. It would appear that our activity has had an effect upon France the reverse of that M. Duboc would awake. The lull in French yards is, however, but the prelude to renewed activity, for it is known that Admiral Besnard, in consultation with the Superior Council of the Navy and the Minister of Finance, has been elaborating a shipbuilding programme of extended character, involving an outlay proposed to be spread over several years.

This programme the Government applied to the Chamber for permission to carry out. The sum asked for is 80,000,000, to be spread over a period of eight years, but the bulk is to be spent within four years. This, of course, is independent of the annual grant for new ships. The Government justifies this alteration of the programme of 1891 on the ground of the necessity of keeping place with foreign countries. It says in a premable that the French Navy should be increased without loss of time, and that in addition to the new constructions provided for in 1897 the following new ships should be placed on the stocks this year: One ironclad of 12,000 tons, two cruisers of 7,500 tons, two protected cruisers of 2,500 tons, four torpedo destroyers of 300 tons, nine torpedo-boats for coast defence of 85 tons. The Minister of Marine says in the bill:—"If Parliament authorises in time the commencement of the works, the division of which is already provisionally settled between the State arsenals and the private shipyards, 8,438,727f. will be applied in 1897 to the building of the additional vessels mentioned above. It is absolutely urgent to begin the work. The greatest activity prevails in the shipyards of our neighbours, and all the nations, great or small, rich or poor, are setting themselves resolutely to work. Should we not be guilty if we allowed ourselves to be left behind, especially as in the matter of building new ships it would be impossible for us to make up for lost time?"

The Greek armoured cruiser "Psara, as will be remembered, underwent considerable alterations at La Seyne, and her sisters, the "Spetsai" and "Hydra," were about to be put in hand when the outbreak of the Cretan agitation caused them to be recalled hastily from Toulon. It is intended, when events permit, that they shall return and undergo the change which has been carried out in the "Psara." This is chiefly in the addition of quick-firing guns and the provision of proper magazines for them, as well as in altering the masts. The ship has now a very powerful armament, chiefly located in the redoubt, which stands in the place of a forward turret, and is built in two stages, of which the lower approximates to a square with the corners cut off. The plating is of 13·7in. Creusort steel. In the upper stage one on each side, are two 10·6in, 35-calibre Canet guns, and at the corners of the lower stage four 5·9in Canet guns, while another of the same calibre is in the middle of the forward face of the redout and in the keel-line of the ship. Here also are four 3·4in. guns, but it is possible they may be removed. In addition, there are on each broadside four 2·35in guns and a 3·9in. Canet guns in the bows, while another 10·6in gun is in a barbette turret aft, and there are four 1·8in. quick-firers and twelve 1·4in. Machine guns deposed in the reduced masts and on the redoubt. The ship has also three torpedo-tubes. The smaller guns are protected by shields. The ship is divided into 118 compartments, and has a coffer-dam filled with cellulose. The foremast has been cut down to the level of the bridge on the redoubt, and lower part serves for ammunition hoists, while its top has been replaced by a sort of platform for small quick-firers about 6ft. above the bridge. The mainmast has also been cut down by about 6ft., while the mizzenmast has been reduced so as to bring it about 18ft. above the quarterdeck, while still lower a platform for quick-firers has been attached to it like that on the foremast. The correspondent of the Yacht, who gives these particulars, remarks that it is not easy to reconcile such great offensive and defensive power as are combined in this ship with her small displacement of 4,885 tons.

"Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL contains the whole of the active ingredients of the remedy, and is easily digested. Hence its value, not only in Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, but in a great number of cases to which the Profession is extending its use."

DR. HUNTER SEMPLE,

"I have long been aware of the great reputation enjoyed by the LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL introduced into medical practice by Dr. DE JONGH, and have recommended it with the utmost confidence. I have no hesitation in stating my opinion, that it possesses all the qualities of a good and efficient medicine. Its taste is by no means disagreeable, and might even be called pleasant. I have found Dr. DE JONGH'S OIL very useful in cases of Chronic Cough, and especially in Laryngeal Disease complicated with Consumption."

DR. SAUNDERS, C.B.,
Late Deputy-Inspector-General Army Hospitals, Superintendent London Medical Mission.

"I have used Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL extensively among the sick poor of St. Giles's, and consider it a valuable remedy, especially in the Wasting Diseases of Children."

DR. WHITMORE,

"My own somewhat lengthened experience as a Medical Practitioner enables me with confidence to recommend Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT BROWN COD LIVER OIL as being more uniform in quality, more certain in its effects, more palatable, and infinitely less likely to disagree with the stomach than the Pale Oil. If I were asked for an explanation of the marked preference which for so many years has attended the administration of Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL, I should say that it is owing to its extraordinary medicinal, dietetic, and reputed properties, and which are found to exist in no other medicine that I am acquainted with, in such uniform combination."

HEMAGLOBINE.

It has been largely employed with excellent results by Dr. Dujardin Beaumetz in the Paris Hospitals (Hopital Cochin and Hopital de la Pitié) in all cases of anæmia, loss of appetite, general weakness, and debility. It is especially valuable as a restorative and for counteracting that feeling of weakness and lassitude so common in tropical climates.
